A New Movie

A New Idea

Jack Dempsey's Hand

Has She Seen Taglioni?

By Arthur Brisbane

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 24—Here, in the heart of movie land, a new picture is as important as the opening of Parliament by King George.

"Trader Horn" was shown for the first time at the Chinese theater in Hollywood Thursday night. Thousands that could not get in lined the streets on both sides, waiting to see the great movie stars "appear in person" to attend the opening.

Fiercely blazing lights made it easy to photograph the superbeings as they arrived, looking very beautiful and unconscious of the fact that they were observed, while high school boys and girls rushed out begging for autographs.

Ten dollars is a moderate price for a seat at such a performance. You cannot imagine the crowd's eagerness unless you happened to see the waiting New York thousands when Consuelo Vanderbilt married the Duke of Marlborough in a Fifth ave. church.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer spent $1,500,000 making the picture in Africa, and you ought to see and hear the four lions fighting, the rhinoceroses shot down, the big ape slain by the leopard. Above all you must see the 16-year-old white girl who rules the savage cannibals with a lash in her hand, and her eyes wide open. She really is a wonder, blonde, skin snow white, not the slightest sign of tan, although she has lived under Africa's tropical sun since she was a baby, walking in her bare feet, wearing nothing but her own golden hair and a little girdle of monkey fur around the waist.

She falls in love with a young white gentleman after having lashed his face without making him wince. Then she suddenly becomes feminine and he has to carry her in his arms through miles and miles of jungle and wild animals. Women are never what you expect them to be.

Much of the most important news of many days comes from the scientific laboratory maintained by the General Electric Co., of which Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope are the responsible heads.

The new device, a thyratron, makes it possible to send power by electricity without limit. It is, in fact, all around the earth at the equator, although that will never be necessary or useful.

This new device, a glass bulb held in one hand, representing the equivalent of 10,000 horsepower, takes the place of a huge rotary converter that would fill two freight cars.

The new invention is too complicated for the lay mind, even with the admirably clear explanation of C. W. Stone, General Electric engineer.

It may make available power supplies now going to waste, for instance, a giant cataract in Brazil, more powerful than Niagara. It may harness far away African cataracts to run machinery in those new African copper mines. Something more for American copper men to think about.

Even more important, this might be the beginning of power transmission without wires, making it possible for airplanes to take up energy from the earth, as an electric engine takes it from a third rail, making fuel tanks unnecessary.

The nation is indebted to its great industrial corporations for their research work, adding billions to the national wealth.

Man does not know wonderful things with electricity, not knowing what electricity is, and that amazes him. He does not know the nature of the human mind that performs these miracles, which is even more amazing. If you wonder at the electron, consider the intellect that weighs the electron, as it does the distant star, and measures the speed of both.

If you say "be careful of your health," little boys and grown men pay no attention. If you say "Jack Dempsey's left hand is badly infected, and he may lose his arm," everybody pays attention.

Dempsey neglected a small cut. The invisible germ is more powerful than the greatest fighter. The powerful hand is swollen twice its size and may be amputated.

Had Dempsey immediately flooded the cut with iodine, he would have had no trouble. War veterans will tell you that soldiers were court-martialed for failure to apply iodine even to the slightest wound.

Don't neglect slight injuries.

A boy at play in the Christmas holidays was pushed into a rose bush, his hand was pricked by a thorn and he died of lockjaw, the germs, doubtlessly contained in manure used to fertilize the roses.

Pavlova, great Russian dancer, is dead. They may, possibly

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 24 (INS)—Mrs. Clara Uhr, 49, became the first woman ever to receive the death penalty in Texas today when she was sentenced to be electrocuted for the murder of her husband, Daniel Uhr, last October. Uhr was slain with an axe as he slept. Lexie Jones, an army private, now awaiting trial, testified for the state that Mrs. Uhr had promised him $500 if he would slay Uhr.

SHERMAN IS STABBED IN NIGHT CLUB

Victim of Gangsters' Battle Once He'd in Connection With Boston Slaying

Charles Sherman, stabbed and shot in a New York night club affray, known here as "Chink" Sherman, was arrested in that city three years ago for questioning in connection with the murder of Louis U. Tucker on Hemenway st., Back Bay, according to the New York police. He was released after questioning at that time.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—In the velvet-curtained Club Abbey, one of the hot spots of Broadway's night life, two rival "mobs" of gunmen shot it out before dawn this morning.

Police who got to the place after Charles Sherman, night club owner, had been taken to a hospital by the club's cigarette girl, found the place a deserted shambles.

Sherman had many bruises and several wounds believed to have been caused by bullets, but his most serious injuries were stab wounds. The interior of the club was a spattered wreck. Broken chairs, splintered tables, bullet-pierced walls and many bloodstains led police to the belief that two gangs had translated their enmity into a free-for-all battle with revolvers, knives and fists.

CLERK TELLS OF SHOOTING

William Gale, clerk on duty in the Hotel Harding, at the time of the affray, told the police he heard four shots and a bullet pierced the partition which separates the Club Abbey from the hotel.

Then club entertainers ran into the lobby through a connecting door and more than 20 patrons hurried into the street, Gale said. He estimated there must have been 60 men and women in the club.

Miss King, under questioning, admitted Sherman's wounds were inflicted inside the club and her story of finding him on the sidewalk was not true.

DAISY IN TEARS OVER VERDICT

Los Angeles, Jan. 24—Convicted by the compromise verdict of an exasperated jury which for hours had been deadlocked 8 to 4 for acquittal, Daisy De Voe languished in jail today awaiting sentence for theft from her former employer, Clara Bow of the films.

After more than 48 hours of bitter wrangling the jury of seven men and five women finally brought in a verdict yesterday holding Daisy guilty of one of the 25 counts of grand theft with which she was charged and recommending clemency.

"Oh, my God!" Daisy cried when the verdict was heard. "But I'm not guilty. If they were going to make me guilty of one count I was guilty of all. How could they do it?"

She was assisted into an anteroom by friends who tried vainly to quiet her sobbing.

There was little or no exultation

TWO ROXBURY YOUTHS HELD IN KIDNAP PLOT

Nichols, Box Factory Head, Is Forced by Pair Into an Auto at Gunpoint

Two youths were arrested at gunpoint on Causeway st., near the old Fitchburg depot today after the alleged "kidnaping" of a Chelsea factory superintendent and an attempt to rob him of a payroll.

They gave their names as Joseph Sullivan, of Brunswick st., Roxbury, and Victor Friedberg, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury.

HELD AT GUNPOINT

John J. Nichols, superintendent of the Standard Box Co., Carleton ave., Chelsea, told police they forced him into his own car at gunpoint and on a ride through Chelsea. Sullivan and Charlestown searched him for a payroll he was supposed to have with him.

Holliver told police he had been hired by a discharged employe for $50 to "beat up" Nichols and had himself engaged Friedberg to help him for $25.

Nichols said they told him the same story during the ride but only after the attempt at robbery. He said they threatened death if he made an outcry.

YOUTHS CAPTURED

The pair abandoned Nichols and the car near City sq., Charlestown. Nichols then drove to the City sq. police station, told the story to Capt. William Livingston and accompanied three officers in a search for the youths.

They had reached Causeway st. when Patrolmen Byrne, Vandenberg and DeRoehn descended on them. Holliver drew an unloaded .32 calibre revolver, according to officers, but was knocked down and disarmed.

Boston to Shiver Tonight; Mercury Due to Drop

The mercury is due to drop tonight to four degrees officially and below zero at suburban points according to prediction today by the weather man.

If the temperature does go that low, it will equal the coldest for this winter. Today was the third coldest day of the winter, with a minimum of 9 at 8 a. m. At 2 p. m. it was only 16 at the weather bureau. Outlying places reported marks all the way down to zero.

The record day of the winter was Dec. 16, when the mercury fell to 4 above, and the second coldest Jan. 5, when the lowest temperature was 7 above.

There is good cheer in the weatherman's forecast for tomorrow, however, as the wind will shift from northerly to easterly, and the mercury may climb rapidly.

The forecast: Fair and continued cold tonight. Sunday, fair with rising temperature. Gentle to moderate northerly winds tonight shifting to easterly Sunday.

Forty-nine years ago today was the second coldest day ever record ed at the Boston Weather Bureau, the mercury being 13 below zero according to G. A. Loveland, official forecaster at the Federal building.

On Jan. 30, 1917, the mercury dropped to 14 below zero, which is the coldest day on record.

Boston Cook Times His Eggs by the Traffic Lights

A restaurant man who times his eggs by the traffic lights was discovered today in a lunchroom at Bunker Hill and Chelsea sts., Charlestown.

This is the way he describes his signal-system recipe:

"From red to red and red again—that's a soft-boiled egg; three times around is a medium and four times is hard-boiled."

It might never have come out but for the fact that John F. Hurley, engineer of the Boston Traffic Commission, dropped in today for a fried egg sandwich. Hurley watched him boiling eggs for another customer with an occasional glance at the lights.

Hurley promised to let him know if the timing arrangement on the lights was changed—else it might go sadly with the man's reputation as a chef.

MARINES KILL REBELS IN FIGHT

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 24 (AP)—United States Marines operating in the State of Telpaneca today engaged in a brief skirmish with an insurgent group whose leader was not identified, killing and wounding several of the band. There were no casualties among the Marines.

The engagement was near the town of Carbonal in northeast Telpaneca. A patrol of 25 Marines under Lieut. Curry was involved. From captives they learned that insurgents were still operating in the hills.

Plenty Sneeze With Colds, But Few Really Have Flu

Deputy City Health Commissioner Joseph Monahan today stated that despite the number of "colds" prevalent, there is no "flu" epidemic in Boston. The department, he explained, has no record on the number of ordinary colds, but he believes they are seasonable.

In releasing figures compiled by the department during the week ending today, Commissioner Monahan declared that 66 cases of influenza and 54 cases of lobar pneumonia were reported during the past seven days. During the same period three deaths were attributed to influenza and five to lobar pneumonia.

"These figures are below the average," he declared. "The average number of cases for the fiscal week of Jan. 17, over a five-year period, is 75 for influenza and 65 for lobar pneumonia."

FOUR PER CENT BEER BILL PRESENTED IN SENATE BY BINGHAM

BUTTERMILK NOW ILLEGAL, HE ASSERTS

Antis Admit That Proposal to Amend Dry Law Has No Chance of Passing

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP)—A bill to legalize 4 per cent beer was offered in the Senate today by Senator Bingham, as a substitute for the pending Howell measure giving a drastic prohibition enforcement act for the Capital.

The Connecticut Republican's proposal brought the first promise for a showdown in the Senate on modification of the Volstead Act. He would have his substitute amend the Volstead Act, thereby making the 4 per cent beer legal throughout the nation.

Wets admitted there was no chance of the Bingham proposal winning Senate approval.

With beginning of consideration of the local enforcement bill enforced by Senator Howell, Republican, Nebraska, much of the Senate discussion was directed to the provision allowing search and seizures in homes. Opposition of Atty.-Gen. Mitchell to this section of the bill was acknowledged by Howell.

Both drys and wets indicated by questioning they were going to attack the home search and seizure provision.

Aside from this section of the bill, Senator Howell said the attorney-general approved the measure.

The Wickersham report opposed "legislation allowing more latitude for federal searches and seizures."

"The statement in the law that liquor containing one-half of 1 per cent alcohol is intoxicating is untrue and one of the most misleading statements ever made in any law," Bingham said.

"Buttermilk, after standing for three days, contains one-half of 1 per cent alcohol, but no one considers it intoxicating."

HASN'T SEEN HOOVER

"I judge not from his message, but I have not talked to him," Bingham said.

Wheeler said he thought, in view of published statements, that the President's mind is still open, that he might favor the proposal.

"I think, in introduction, politics into a serious scientific question of this kind," Bingham said.

Bingham said it was necessary for a person to "make a hog of himself" to get intoxicated on 4 per cent beer.

He said the Eighteenth Amendment would be entirely constitutional and asked a record vote.

WINES NOT INCLUDED

The Connecticut senator said he had been urged to recommend light wines, also, but few light wines have less than eight of ten per cent of alcohol and he doubted if they would be held constitutional under the Eighteenth Amendment. He did not name who urged him.

In that case, Pavlova by this time may have met and watched Taglioni, greatest ballerina that ever lived on earth.

In modern dancing various things are imitated, apaches, and heaven knows what.

Even Pavlova had to imitate a swan. Taglioni imitated nothing, content to interpret the grace of womanhood. She died long ago. Those that saw her used to say that she "floated" across the stage.

If women dancers would dance and not turn handsprings or imitate a thunder storm, many would be grateful.

The British will release Mahatma Gandhi who has been in prison since last May and made a very comfortable prisoner, Britain being careful not to make him a martyr.

The trouble is that being released it will be necessary for him to invent some interesting agitation. "A mahatma, like a salesman, must show results."

But poor Gandhi, peaceful at heart, doesn't know exactly what to do with the $90,000,000 that stand behind him. What would Napoleon have done with such a crowd, or one of the great Tartar rulers, or even some leader of Tammany Hall who would know how to use their votes?

FORTY ROUTED IN LYNN FIRE

Heroic work saved 40 persons, including a cripple, in a general alarm fire that swept a lodging house at 184 Union st., Lynn, today. One fireman was injured.

Fire department officials estimated the damage at between $30,000 and $35,000.

The injured fireman is Hoseman James O'Connor. He was knocked unconscious when the floor which he was carrying into the basement of the burning structure got away from him, the nozzle striking him on the head. He was carried from the building by Lt. Harry Hayden and taken to the Lynn Hospital.

A general alarm was sounded, bringing help from Revere, Swampscott, Salem, Peabody and Nahant.

George Caron, a lodger on the top floor of the four-story wooden structure, electrified a crowd of more than 3000 spectators when he lowered himself to the street on a life line, while flames and smoke engulfed him. He escaped injury.

The blaze, which broke out in the basement of the building known as "Glendon Hall," had its hero and heroine in Fred Kelly, 18, and Mrs. Nellie McLaughlin, landlady, and Miss Irene LeBlanc.

Yeoue Kelly assisted his mother, Mrs. Irene Briggs, and his sister, Miss Marion Kelly, through smoke-filled corridors to the street.

Mrs. McLaughlin and Miss LeBlanc, sensing the danger of the situation and realizing that because the shoe factories do not open in Lynn on Saturday that nearly everyone in the house was asleep at the time, went from door to door, arousing the occupants.

They also assisted other roomers in carrying George Thorner, a cripple, to safety from his room on the second floor.

Paul Carlson, after being led to the street by other lodgers, reentered the blazing building to get a violin valued at $1000.

Harriman Auto Trial Postponed

With his counsel explaining that Henry I. Harriman, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, is in Washington, the case against him in Attleboro court today on the charge of driving his automobile so as to endanger the lives of the public, was postponed until a later date.

Harriman's operators license was suspended indefinitely by Motor Registrar Parker during the past week. The case aginst Harriman is the result of an accident in North Attleboro, on December 18, when six persons were injured.

Part of the cost was borne by Congress and part by contributions of pennies by school children.

Beaux Art Dancers Step to Tune of Riveting Drills

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Pneumatic riveting machines, ocean liner whistles, drills and live steam pipes which helped furnish music for last night's Beaux Arts ball went back to their normal jobs this morning none the worse for their night out.

But society and society's guests at the annual frolic of the fine arts group were just retiring when the riveting machines went back to work.

Participants called the all-night fete moderne one of the most frantically gay, grotesque and entertaining parties in 12 years' history of Beaux Art balls. It was the last which will be held in the Hotel Astor on Broadway. Future balls are scheduled for the new Waldorf-Astoria on Park ave.

Kenneth M. Murchison, director of the orchestra of construction and percussion, performed his task in fancy dress. He took part in the architects' parade of skyscrapers of their design. He himself represented a model apartment house.

Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt attended the ball in crimson beach pajamas.

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (AP)—A large group of men, estimated at more than 200, assembled in historic Independence sq. today and started off on what their leaders said would be a march of 318 miles to the White House in Washington.

The leaders said that most of the marchers were unemployed World War veterans intent upon presenting an appeal to the President to hasten the passage of legislation for the relief of unemployed former soldiers.

Before the little "army" left impromptu speeches were made to the crowd that looked on and the Stars and Stripes were waved.

U. S. FROWNS ON AMERICAN HEAD FOR PARLEY

League Plan for President of Arms Conference Is Disapproved

Geneva, Jan. 24—The United States has definitely turned thumbs down on the proposal to set up an American diplomat as president of the world disarmament conference to be held next year by the League of Nations.

When an important message from the State Department, giving its decision on this maneuver, was communicated to members of the league council during a secret session yesterday, the council decided to postpone the selection of a president until its May meeting.

The German proposal to set the date of the conference for November, 1931, was finally ruled out by the big powers led by France, and the council set February 2, 1932, as the date on which the world conference on arms limitation and reduction is to convene.

CITY NOT NAMED

The council also postponed selecting the city in which the conference is to be staged, pending an investigation of possible sites. Vienna is making a strong bid for the convention; a bid supported by Germany and Russia.

The negotiations in ascertain whether the United States would agree to the selection of an American to head the conference were carried on between officials of the league secretariat and Hugh R. Wilson, American minister at Berne.

Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, Senator Dwight W. Morrow and Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes had been considered, it was learned definitely.

Eduard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, who had also been prominently mentioned, drew no nearer the presidency of the conference because of German and Italian opposition.

DISPUTES REPORT TODAY

The other matter still troubling the council, settlement of the Germano-Polish dispute over treatment of German minorities in Upper Silesia by Poland, will doubtless reach a decision today when the commission handling the evidence submits its report.

The report will probably contain German demands that Poland be rebuked for failing to observe articles 74 and 84 of the Versailles convention, censured for its treatment of German groups, and present a full report to the council in May giving evidence that the guilty officials have been punished. It may also demand that Poland make reparation and give guarantees of future better conduct.

The council decided to name a small committee to examine the problem of assisting the Liberian government to effect social and administrative reforms recommended by the International Slavery Commission. The United States is invited to participate in the committee's work.

The council suggested Liberia begin its attempts to reform by ratifying the international convention on forced labor.

BOSTON DRIVER WINS DOG DERBY

Lake Placid Club, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—Walter Channing of Boston, with dogs bred in his own kennels, won the fourth annual Lake Placid Club sled dog derby today.

Channing's huskies, which led the field yesterday, again romped in to capture the second day's honors. In the two racing days the team covered 32 miles of difficult course in two hours, 43 minutes and 23 seconds. Channing drove himself, and repeated his victory of last year. His second team, driven by John Johnson, finished third.

Mrs. E. P. Rinker of Poland Spring, Me., driving herself, took second place, finishing approximately 14 minutes behind Channing.

The dogs raced in weather 10 degrees below zero, but there was a fresh coat of soft snow over the course.

have occurred there and one gangster was shot in the street nearby. Before it became the Club Abbey it was Texas Guinan's salon of all night gayety.

Because it is housed in a hotel—the Hotel Harding in 54th st.—it has not been compelled to observe the 3 a. m. curfew rule. It had been regarded as a haven for the few clubs which was prospering in a season which has been the leanest in the night club industry.

The club is manned by Louis and Artie Schwartz. The master of ceremonies is Jean Malin, a female impersonator.

Sherman, who was taken to Polyclinic Hospital, was said to have been engaged in the night club business at one time with Frankie Marlow, late racketeer, and Larry Fay, regarded as a gambler of the "plunger" type.

He was said by police to have been a close friend of the late Arnold Rothstein, whose killing remains one of New York's unsolved mysteries.

Marvia King, cigarette girl, who said she found Sherman in front of the Club Abbey and took him to a hospital in a taxicab was detained. Police regarded with suspicion her denial she said anything to Sherman during the ride. The cab driver said he heard her mutter in the unconscious man:

"We'll get them yet. We'll get them."

The fight apparently started in the "privilege corner" of the club, a spot where favored patrons temporarily "broke" were served on credit.

Indentations in the heavy crimson rug indicated to detectives that at least two persons were hurt. A watch was set on all hospitals. The police took charge of two revolvers found on the floor.

RELIEF DELAY IS CRITICISED BY SEN. CARAWAY

Nation-Wide Broadcast Adds $400,000 to Red Cross Drouth Fund

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—While the relief measure was agitated anew in the Senate, the Red Cross today reported contributions in excess of $400,000 as a result of the nation-wide broadcast Thursday night for donations to its $10,000,000 fund. The total to date was $1,670,952.

Red Cross chapters were reported feeding 603,499 persons in 343 counties in 21 states as of noon Friday. In the previous 24 hours the number had jumped by 16,465.

HOUSE CRITICIZED

The House appropriations committee was criticized at the outset of the Senate session by Sen. Caraway for delaying the proposed $25,000,000 to the Red Cross by holding hearings. The taking of testimony begins Monday. The Senate approved the fund.

"For what purpose they are holding hearings, I don't know," the Arkansas Democrat said. "The situation has been gone over thoroughly."

He cited the radio appeals from President Hoover, former President Coolidge and others as evidence of the need.

Caraway read a number of letters from people in various parts of the country asking for food and clothing.

TO SPEED HEARINGS

Meanwhile, Acting Chairman Cramton of the House Appropriations Committee, said "the very existence" of the Red Cross was involved in matters affecting consideration of the $25,000,000 appropriation.

After a conference at the White House with President Hoover, the Michigan Representative said the hearings would be conducted as expeditiously as possible.

While Democratic spokesmen have mentioned "deliberate delay by administration leaders, Cramton asserted there was no "filibuster."

Following the broadcast Thursday night, Red Cross receipts on Friday showed the greatest amount for any one day since the drive began. Workers were busy tabulating the funds from every part of the country.

INSURANCE FOR IDLE STUDIED

Albany, Jan. 24—The governors of seven States, gathered in a round table conference today, prodded the problem of unemployment to find its vulnerable spot. The weapons were information placed in their hands yesterday by experts who came before them at an open hearing.

Among them as the sharpest lance was unemployment insurance. The conference, or at least its majority, feeling that the word "insurance" produced objectionable reactions in certain quarters, called it "unemployment reserve."

The governors, executives of a block of northeastern industrial States, also had before them for their consideration the suggestion that a State could establish, in the plentiful years, reserve funds to be drawn upon in lean years for public works and so for employment of the unemployed.

While the governors were in conference, a delegation of Albany unemployed marched about the mansion lawn carrying banners and demanding immediate help by the State.

State troopers made no attempt to disperse the delegation, which was composed of twenty men and one woman.

Dempsey Suggests Mat Career to Babe

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Babe Ruth and Jack Dempsey have some great ideas for each other. Babe visited Jack in a hospital.

Said Babe to Jack:

"Why haven't you a sock or two left for some of these birds they call heavyweights nowadays?"

Said Jack to Babe:

"Why don't you look into that wrestling racket? Can't lose. Be a riot. You got the beef."

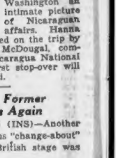
The conference is for the purpose of giving officials at Washington an intimate picture of Nicaraguan affairs. Hanna will be accompanied on the trip by Colonel Douglas McDougal, commander of the Nicaragua National Guard. Their first stop-over will be made at Miami.

Evelyn Laye's Former Husband Weds Again

London, Jan. 24 (INS)—Another chapter in a famous "change-about" romance of the enacted here today when Jessie Matthews, British musical comedy star, was married to "Sonnie" Hale, her leading man.



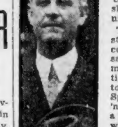
Evelyn Laye

Hale was formerly the husband of Evelyn Laye, another British star of the footlights. Miss Laye's divorce from Hale was made absolute early this week by the British courts.

Miss Matthews obtained a divorce from her first husband some months ago, taking the unusual course of admitting her own infidelity and informing the judge she wished the divorce in order that she might marry Hale.

"School Marriage Days" Admits Kissing Days Ended

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 24 (AP)—Richmond Pearson Hobson, in the days of "Remember the Maine," was a quite a dashing blade among the hero worshipping feminine set.



Richmond P. Hobson

The kisses, bestowed and received, after he had sunk the Merrimack in Santiago's harbor to bottle up the Spanish fleet, 'nigh rang around the world. But he passed one up yesterday.

Hobson came here to confer with members of the Arizona Legislature on uniform narcotic laws.

"Will you permit one of our Capitol's fairest stenographers to kiss you, for the sake of photographic record?" newspapermen asked.

"I guess," said Hobson, "my kissing days are over."

Society Bride Puts Her Half for New Home

New York, Jan. 24—It's most modern—that marriage of Preston Sturges, playwright and composer, and Eleanor Hutton, who, until the elopement, was the petted darling of New York society.

Mrs. Preston Sturges

The independence of Eleanor, which first evinced itself when the blue-eyed, rose-leaf complexioned blonde ignored family dictates and took the husband she wanted, carries on in her domestic life.

For when the playwright's home, Eleanor announced flatfootedly that she wouldn't live in a house she didn't pay her half for.

So, on a fifty-fifty basis, they are now owners of the old C. C. Goodrich mansion at 125 East 45th st. Eleanor and Preston each writing their own check for $85,000.

GUALINO, ITALIAN "TRUST MAKER," EXILED FOR FIVE YEARS

ACTS AGAINST NATION SET AS CAUSE

Term to Be Served at Penal Colony; the Banker Lost Heavily in Depression

Turin, Italy, Jan. 24 (AP)—Ricardo Gualino, the Italian financier who was arrested on Thursday for "motives of public security" today was sentenced to five years exile to one of the Italian penal islands.

Sentence was imposed by the Fascist commission of the Province of Turin, which specified that the term should be served on the Island of Lipari.

His offense was designated as "grave and reiterated damage to the nation's economy."

HAD HEAVY LOSSES

Gualino, long regarded as very wealthy, was said to have lost heavily because of the current economic depression. A year ago his indebtedness to the Banca Agricola Italiana reached about $25,000,000, two-fifths of which was secured by collateral.

The bank is said to have appealed to the Bank of Italy for help, having lost about seven times its capital, and the Bank of Italy came to the rescue after Gualino had conveyed his $12,000,000 art collection to the government.

CALLED "TRUST MAKER"

Gualino was called the "trust maker of Italy." He was the head of the country's largest chain store corporation and of the Snia Viscosa, the large rayon manufacturing company, whose stock was listed on the Paris Bourse and became involved in the Oustric bank scandal, which brought about the downfall of the Tardieu government last month.

He was well off before the war, but his real success came after the armistice.

Rudy Was Given Something to Remember

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Rudy Vallee will now sing: "Exgsactly Like You."

Harvard demonstrated the value of compulsory education when Rudy sang: "Give Me Something to Remember You By."

The students donated grapefruit.

Rudy handled the situation perfectly. His next effort was: "Ninety-nine in a Hundred."

We don't know whether Rudy meant that as a song or the score.

Don't forget that Rudy is a Yale man. He sings the Maine stein song but that was a post-graduate course.

Harvard and Yale are dudely enemies. A Yale man in Boston is a modern Daniel in a squirrel's cage. It's like waving a red lamp at a traffic bull.

Rudy showed his sportsmanship by refusing to prosecute the Harvard huddle.

He made a lot of new friends by his diplomacy. But sometimes a new friend can get too new.

He ran up against the same thing in vaudeville. The audience threw broccoli, euchre prizes, tomato cans, bottles and rare things from mail order catalogues. But it was summer time and to this day we can never imagine where they got the snowballs.

Hunt Is on for Faro Players and $50,000

"NICKY" ARNSTEIN MRS. BLACKLIDGE EDWARD R. LITSINGER

"MRS. BLACKLIDGE, YOU HAVE WON $207,000. YOU MUST POST $50,000 AS PROOF THAT YOUR CHECKS WOULD HAVE BEEN GOOD HAD YOU LOST."
MRS. BLACKLIDGE LITSINGER AND HIS SON FRED WENT TO SPRINGFIELD. FRED TOOK THE $50,000 TO A HOTEL ROOM WHERE HE WAS "STRONG ARMED"

WITH PAPER WINNINGS of $207,000 recorded, Mrs. Myrtle T. Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue in Chicago, had finished her faro game with three sharp-shooting gambling men whom she met by introduction. However, there was just a little "catch." Mrs. Blacklidge was asked to post $50,000 to guarantee the worth of her checking account. Not having that amount of cash, Mrs. Blacklidge approached Edward R. Litsinger, wealthy Chicago officer holder. Litsinger agreed to get the $50,000 for Mrs. Blacklidge. Litsinger and his son Fred went to Springfield, Ill., where the fake faro game was played. Fred carried the bag. Mrs. Blacklidge indicated room to which the money was to be forwarded. Fred went to that room. He was pounced upon. Money is gone. Men are missing. Police are looking for "Nicky" Arnstein, who was in Chicago recently, in hopes he may be able to aid the investigation. (International Newsreel photos.)

FARO SWINDLE VICTIM QUITS U. S. SERVICE

Revenue Collector Says She Made Mistake When She Entered Crooked Game

Chicago, Jan. 24 (INS)—Admitting that she made a "grave mistake in judgment" when she entered a crooked faro game at Springfield, Ill., which resulted in a loss of $50,000, Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, collector of internal revenue, today announced she has sent her resignation to Washington.

Under the care of a physician, Mrs. Blacklidge declared she was "broken in body and my head bent low" as a result of the furors that followed the swindle.

Despite the charges against her of Edward Litsinger, prominent politician, whose money was lost in the deal, Mrs. Blacklidge asserted her actions throughout had been free of "wrong or ulterior motive."

Further, she characterized herself as the victim of "a most brutal calamity and unjust and unfounded accusation" by one whom she had regarded as a friend.

Revenue Bureau Probes Mrs. Blacklidge's Books

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Myrtle T. Blacklidge today resigned as collector of internal revenue in Illinois.

The internal revenue bureau said the resignation would be accepted at once.

Investigation into Mrs. Blacklidge's office will be continued by the bureau until it is assured that her affairs with the Government are in proper shape.

She has been involved in an alleged "faro swindle," saying she lost $50,000 in cash and $207,000 in paper profits in a faro game at Springfield, Ill.

It was said on behalf of the internal revenue bureau that it had no explanation that Mrs. Blacklidge's handling of Government business was in any way affected by her difficulty.

HOOVER SILENT WHILE G. O. P. STORM RAGES

President Decides to Defer Clarifying Statement on Wickersham Report

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE

Washington, Jan. 24 (US)—President Hoover has decided to defer a new and clarifying statement of his views on the Wickersham report and prohibition until the storm within the Republican party ranks and Congress subsides.

He decided to let Senator Simeon Fess, (R) Ohio, chairman of the Republican National Committee and spokesman for the dry organizations interpret his views as "liberal and being of an open mind" instead of a fanatical dry, it was officially learned.

PRESSED BY LEADERS

The President was expected yesterday to make a statement which would remove any question of doubt as to his views on prohibition, as enunciated in the message with which he sent the Wickersham report to Congress. He was pressed by party leaders to do so and during the day received a large number of telegrams. Those who are ardent prohibitionists urged him to make even a stronger pronouncement in favor of enforcing the national prohibition act as it is now written.

Politicians in the anti-prohibition camp, notably members of Congress from the eastern states, told the President in messages that they could not hope to carry their respective states if they had to make the campaign on a "bone-dry" Republican platform.

PRESSED FOR STATEMENT

Between these two camps the President decided to make no definite commitment. His spokesmen in the White House and the Senate have already let it be known that the President is of an "open mind" as to whether the law should be revised, and he wishes to leave that impression, it was stated.

The President has been hard pressed by party leaders from New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Maryland and New Jersey during the last 24 hours to make a clear statement to the effect that he is not opposed to a future revision of the Volstead act or the Eighteenth Amendment, it was learned.

The President has decided, however, after a talk with his political advisers, to maintain silence while the question is being debated in Congress.

562 SAVED AS PRISON BURNS

Wetumpka, Ala., Jan. 24 (AP)—Fire of undetermined origin early today swept the main building of the 62-year-old State prison here, causing heavy property damage but the 562 prisoners were marched to safety without loss of life or injury.

The fire raged for two hours before being brought under control as fire departments of Wetumpka and Montgomery had trouble maintaining pressure enough to check the flames. None of the cell blocks were seriously damaged.

Prisoners, including 231 women, were marched into the yard behind the blazing building, where they were told under guard until the fire had been extinguished.

Taxi Driver Has His Mustache Cut Off, Saving 75 Cents

A taxicab driver from the North End district reported at police headquarters today to have his fingerprints taken, in accordance with the new regulations, and to present his photograph for the files.

It was a good photo except that it showed him clean-shaven, whereas actually his upper lip was well decorated.

"You'll have to go out and have another picture taken," said Inspector James Claffin.

"How much will that cost?" asked the driver.

"Oh, you can get three for $1 somewhere around here," said Claffin.

The driver left. In 15 minutes he was back again with the same picture but without the mustache. Save—25 cents. Figure it out.

GAS FELLS FIVE IN PAWTUCKET

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 24 (AP)—Five persons, two of them policemen, were seriously affected by illuminating gas early today. The gas seeped into three houses after a break in a street main had occurred.

Those affected were taken to Memorial Hospital. They were: Mrs. Martha Smith, 73; Miss Frances Walsh, 50; Mrs. Marie Collins, 70, and Patrolmen John W. Weir and Frank Parker.

The officers were overcome when they went to the assistance of occupants of the houses.

POWER BOARD PROBE ASKED

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—A determined Senate majority prepared today to carry on its fight with President Hoover for removal of three members of the new power commission.

While a resolution to bring a court test of the President's right to retain the three officials awaited for action in the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator Wheeler, Democrat, proposed an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Committee of the circumstances surrounding the dismissal of the commission's solicitor, Charles A. Russell and accountant, William V. King.

The nominations of the three commissioners, Chairman Smith and Commissioners Draper and Garsaud, were recommitted by the Senate yesterday to the committee by 45 to 32.

The Montana Senator also said he would ask that the committee call for any correspondence in the commission's files which might show whether any one in high authority had anything to do with the dismissals.

Orono, Me., Jan. 24 (AP)—Edward V. Halstead, of Somerville, N. J., University of Maine sophomore who disappeared Tuesday has been located, the youths' father notified college authorities today.

QUINCY CADET MAY GO BACK

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Senate naval sub-committee which has been investigating the dismissal of two students from Annapolis for taking girls into the mess hall dressed as midshipmen has decided to recommend their reinstatement.

The sub-committee has unanimously agreed to submit a favorable report on the resolution introduced by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, providing for reinstatement of the two youths—M. S. Burgin of Jacksonville, Fla., and L. L. Myatt of Wollaston, Mass.

Senator Walsh said the report would be submitted to the full committee Tuesday and he was confident of its approval.

Officials of the Naval Academy, who appeared before the committee, defended the discipline they had meted out to the two midshipmen, but members of the committee expressed the view it was a little severe in view of the claims by the two students the incident was merely a "prank."

World Owes Mr. Hearst Debt for Naval Stand—Churchill

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (INS)—"The World owes William Randolph Hearst a great debt," Randolph Churchill, scion of a noted British family, declared in praising Mr. Hearst's stand on the Anglo-American naval treaty.

"If more attention had been paid to his warnings on such treaties," Mr. Churchill told the Friday Morning Club, "the world would be in a much better position today."

Naval treaties, the son of Winston Churchill, British minister of munitions and lord of the admiralty during the war, said, have all been approached upon a fallacious basis.

"Why should either America or Great Britain consider reduction of armament unless the rest of the world shows a different spirit?" he asked. "Look at the naval competition beginning between France and Italy. Look at the Communists abroad in the world. Look at the other destructive forces.

"Would it not be ridiculous for Great Britain and America to minimize their great influence for peace by disarming? By so doing our only achievement would be to encourage a lot of sob-sister politicians who mistake themselves for statesmen.

"The whole question of a naval reduction treaty has been based on the fallacy that England and America are in naval competition. They are not. Their navies are necessary to their lives.

"It is ridiculous to talk of war between your country and mine. Any sane man knows that a war between these countries would mean the wiping out of civilization.

"The whole thing is just a part of the sloppy thinking and sentimentalism of today."

Beaux Arts Ball Gala Event

"Skyline of New York" Depicted in Costumes at Hotel Astor Spectacle

COSTUMES REPRESENTING various tall buildings to make "the skyline of New York" was the feature of the Beaux Arts Ball which was held at the Hotel Astor in New York last evening. Gayety was the keynote of this, the last ball given by the Beaux Arts architects on Broadway, as the new Waldorf-Astoria will be the setting for future affairs given by these architects. Silver and flame was the color scheme in fancy costume and decoration and the ballroom was a spectacle of riotous color and modernistic splendor.

MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE who were arrayed as part of the "sky line" were Mr. Chester Aldrich, who went as the New Union Club; Mr. Harvey Wiley Corbett, as the Bush Building; Mr. D. Everett Waid, as the Metropolitan Life Building; Mr. J. H. Freedlander, as the Museum of the City of New York; Mr. Raymond M. Hood, as the Daily News Building; Mr. Ely J. Kahn, as the International Telephone Building; Mr. Julian C. Levi, as a 15-story apartment house, and Mr. Benjamin W. Morris, as the Union League Club.

MR. KENNETH M. MURCHISON, chairman of the committee, represented a model tenement house; Mr. Whitney Warren, the Grand Central Terminal; Mr. Douglas L. Elliman, an entire group of apartments; Mr. Peter Grimm, the Real Estate Board Building, and Mr. Ralph Walker, as 1 Wall st. This ball is always one of the outstanding events of the New York social season.

Library Committee of Junior League to Meet Wednesday

THE LIBRARY COMMITTEE of the Junior League consisting of Miss Elizabeth Smith, chairman, Miss Esther Grew, assistant librarian; Mrs. R. G. Ervin, Mrs. Murray Forbes, Jr., Mrs. Gordon Allen and Miss Abby Beveridge will hold their monthly meeting Wednesday, January 28, to discuss new books to be added by the library. The lending library, at Zero Marlboro st., run by the committee, is the nucleus of far-reaching Junior League activities.

MEMBERSHIP IN THE lending library, which is not restricted to Junior League members, not only gives the privilege of renting the newest fiction and non-fiction, but is the means of supplying a large part of the books sent to the free lending library maintained by the League at the Robert Brent Brigham Hospital. Mrs. Frederick S. Whiteside, assisted by Mrs. Hollis French, is in charge of the volunteer service of Junior League members at this hospital, which includes many varieties of service as well as running the lending library. The librarians at the hospital are Miss Stella Gray, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. Frank Leser, Mrs. Samuel Sears and Mrs. John F. Enders.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE ALSO keeps the Cancer hospital in Pondville supplied with books. The Boston City hospital has recently applied to the league for volunteer librarians and that new responsibility is being filled by Mrs. Paul Rust, Jr., and Mrs. Donald Seals in the surgical ward and also Samuel Diack and Mrs. Robert Joplin and Mrs. William C. Pierce in the medical ward. More members than ever before in the Junior League lending library are increasing the scope of its helpfulness. New members are always welcome.

THE NEXT LECTURE OF the training course for provisional members will be at the league rooms on Tuesday, January 27. Dr. George Bigelow, state commissioner of public health, will speak on "The Government's Responsibility in Public Welfare." On Friday, January 30, Dr. C. M. Warren Stearns, state commissioner of correction, will speak on "Criminal Justice—the Vision of the Future."

Bill Would Revive Public Bequest Fund

Editor Boston American:

I filed House bill entitled "An Act to establish Old Age Assistance or Pension Law by lowering the age limit thereof and for diligently advertising the so-called Public Bequest Fund, established under the Acts of 1928."

As a member of the Legislature of 1928, I introduced the petition of Wendall Phillips There which provided for the age limits of 60 for women and 65 years for male citizens.

As a matter of political expediency and wisdom, the friends of Old Age Pensions were obliged to accept the bill containing the 70 years provision, when, as a matter of fact, it is meaningless and useless in the vast marjority of cases.

The present provision of 70 years provides a pension in the grave yard, and not maintenance for the living.

In 1918 the Legislature passed what is called the Public Bequest Fund whereby one may bequeath his mind and memory of money. Thus, instead of providing for the care of animals such as cats, dogs, horses, birds, etc., one may bequeathe and donate to this Public Bequest Fund. Since the enactment of this fund in 1928 the Public Bequest Commission has been unheard of.

This bill, filed by me last Saturday, provides that it shall be the duty of the commission to advertise diligently this Public Bequest Fund. Surely, it will provide a source of revenue that otherwise would be overlooked.

The Legislature has a solemn duty to perform on this Old Age Pension amendment. It means the life, the welfare and the maintenance of honorable and deserving aged.

Points Ford as Solver of Depression Problem

Editor Boston American:

From time to time during the present depression and the ensuing recovery from same, we, as readers of the newspapers, read statements made by people of prominence as to possible remedies from this depression.

What they tell us is not news, in that we readers already know the correct cure for unemployment. There is no reason in the world why we should not know it. We have the proof of it from Henry Ford, who has made himself many times a millionaire on the very theory that if you give the workingman money to buy with that he automatically becomes a buyer. And yet with smug self-satisfaction the capitalists fail to fall in line when one has already shown the way.

It is my firm belief that perhaps many of our prominent people have known that money given in wages to the worker means a quick return of same for some article on which business realizes a profit, and have known this for a long time.

Try and sell these ideas to the capitalists and controllers of our purses. It is some proposition. The fools either cannot or will not realize that any money they let go of will come back with a handsome per cent of profit.

We of the working world are not morons. We ask reason as well as any other person.

"When the controllers of the world's moneys put into practice a proven theory, 'Money paid out to workers always brings a good return on the investment,' then, and not until then, will depression from unemployment be minimized."

Boston Troubles Due to Some Folks' Selfishness

Editor Boston American:

A writer in your letter column asks: "What is the matter with Boston?"

The trouble with Boston is the trouble with many other cities. It is due to people who are interested only in matters that appeal directly to themselves. They have not one ounce of public spirit.

Citizenship is trusteeship. People often get the government they deserve. Boston calls upon its citizens to be more interested in its administration and to back up plans that are destined to make for progress.

Plaids Are Appearing Under Fur

By ANN ARDEN

WHEN THE whole winter picture begins to pall a bit and every smart person you know has taken off for the South—cheer up your whole outlook with a plaid frock! There is nothing that lifts gloom from a fair feminine visage quite like the purchase of a gay and possibly frivolous frock.

* * *

WE SUGGEST plaids because they are so dashing in color, quite the most delightful fashion of the hour. And so completely charming under the winter coat. Suppose we have already convinced you that it is a plaid (we have, haven't we?)—then the next step is to set forth in search of one. The frock having a trimly tailored air with its wide rever collar and slimly tapering lines should suit the most exacting tastes. The button on one rever with the buttonhole on the other is an amusing touch.

* * *

OF COURSE, you can't wear old accessories with such a new frock! Thus you tarry a moment longer in the shop to pick out a slender pump in black calf piped in patent leather. And a new bag, also in calf, which has an intriguing top of mirrors mounted on a silver bar. That's that, but no! There on the jewelry counter is the most unusual clip of the season. You must have it. It is square, studded with just the stones to echo the colors of your frock. It is the perfect finish to a perfect costume.

* * *

PLAID ACCESSORIES for a plain costume (not by any stretch of the sartorial imagination for the plaid one) are numerous and handsome. There are plaid cravats in many color combinations—cravat and handbag sets, plaid berets. Plaid ribbons, too, for banding hats.

* * *

THE PLAID frock pictured gives the effect of gingham, which once lowly fabric is promised a smart revival. This interlacing plaid is toned orange green, red and black; the skirt has inverted box pleats, from a fitted upper section, and dips slightly on sides and back. The bodice is double-breasted, fastening with bone buttons in black and orange. Small collar, and pointed revers finish the neckline, and the belt is of braided leather, black and orange, with silver buckle. The necklace is orange and black carved beads strung on silver chain.

GOV. ROOSEVELT POWER PLAN CHALLENGE TO TRUST

Albany, N. Y., January 24 (US)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York has thrown down the gauge of battle to the power interests of the nation. He hurled his challenge in a special message to the New York Legislature this week, in which he called upon the Republican-controlled Senate and Assembly to create a state power authority for development of the hydro-electric resources of the St. Lawrence river.

The site of the proposed development is at Messina Point, near the northeastern tip of the boundary line between New York and Canada.

Governor Roosevelt warned that the authority might find it necessary to be armed with a "bargaining club" of State-owned transmission lines.

"WHIP HAND" FOR STATE

Such a weapon, he said, would provide the state with a "whip hand" in negotiating a contract with the Niagara-Hudson Corporation, the "existing super-utility," for handling the current.

It would insure, he said, reasonable rates to large and small consumers.

The salient points of his special "battle" message, were summarized by the Governor as follows:

"First, that the power can be developed cheaply.

"Second, that the rates at which it is to be sold to the ultimate consumers should be fixed by contract in the interest of the consumer.

"Third, that if the contract is impossible to obtain, alternative methods should be pursued which would ultimately place this power in the homes of our cities at low rates."

DRIVE YEAR OLD

The message, distinguished by plain talk, touched off a Republican back fire in legislative chambers, in which the Governor's presidential potentialities were conceded.

This special message on power development was the most recent phase of a drive launched by Gov. Roosevelt one year ago. At the 1930 legislative session he smashed a political deadlock that blocked action for 20 years, when he forced a reluctant Republican majority to join in the creation of a non-partisan commission, appointed by Gov. Roosevelt to explore the question of state-power development.

The findings of this Roosevelt-appointed commission reported to the legislature formed the basis of the governor's "gauge of battle" message to the power interests.

The commission agreed on the "feasibility and practicability" of development and operation as a state undertaking.

They split on the question of transmission and distribution.

The two reports demonstrated unanimously:

$171,000,000 FOR DAM

That construction of the necessary dam and power houses by the state is "feasible and safe," and that the cost will approximate $171,000,000 or $70,000,000 less than any previous estimate.

The plant will be capable of producing 2,000,000 horsepower per year.

That electricity can be generated cheaply or at $10 per horsepower per year as contrasted with the cost of $25 for energy produced by steam.

That the rates which consumers would pay should be fixed by contract rather than by public service commission regulation.

That the primary purpose is to place cheap power in the homes of small consumers, the farms and the small shops of the state.

That municipalities of New York state should be able to purchase cheap power from the authority to be distributed to their own residents.

FOR PRIVATE SALE

Both the majority and minority members of the commission agreed that the economic obstacles to a state-owned transmission system made sale of the current through established private channels preferable.

The minority report, however, reflected the position of the governor who has consistently held that the power should be developed for the primary benefit of the small consumers at the lowest possible rates.

In line with that doctrine the minority presented two alternatives, both are to apply in the event the authority is unable to obtain a fair contract with existing utilities for power disposition.

In such an exigency the minority, backed by the governor, held that the two methods open were a contract with another private company to be organized for the sole purpose of transmitting the current or construction by the authority itself of transmission and distribution lines.

WOULD ISSUE BONDS

It is contended by the governor that it will be wholly possible to interest private investment in such a new company because the earnings would be based on a firm contract with the power authority.

Financing of the entire project is to be accomplished by the issuances of long term 5 per cent bonds based on a contract insuring sufficient return for amortization, depreciation and operation.

The governor's message hailed the reports as a great step forward in the "ultimate attainment of his program for cheaper electricity for the homes and small consumers of the state."

The united findings of the majority and minority were termed "an outstanding vindication for those of us who have supported the project against insidious propaganda for private development."

ASSAILS MERGER

Governor Roosevelt took occasion again to deplore last summer's merger of the three largest holding companies of power corporations into the joint merger of the Niagara-Hudson Power Co., which he denominated the "power trust" in New York State.

Concluding his message to the 1931 Legislature, he declared that "the time is ripe for the creation by the Legislature of a power authority" with legislative sanction to carry to completion negotiations, inasmuch that harnessing of the turbulent St. Lawrence will be an international undertaking agreements must be made with Canada, Great Britain and the federal government.

Moon Flight Cost Set at 2 Millions

New York, Jan. 24 (INS)—M. Esnault-Pelterie, the man who wants to fly to the moon, thinks it possible that a flight to the moon might be made within ten years in a rocket if a fund of $2,000,000 were available for preliminary research. The French engineer today endorsed a proposed international commission which later on may supervise rocket experiments.

Belgium to Spend $17,000,000 on Forts

Brussels, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Belgian government today issued a statement correcting an impression that its plans for strengthening the frontier defenses call for the expenditure of $55,000,000. The government scheme contemplates expenditure of only $17,000,000, the statement said.

German Films to Be Shown in U. S.

Berlin, Jan. 24 (AP)—The International Film Import Corporation of New York has purchased the entire production of the 1930-31 season of the German Lichtspiel Syndikat, consisting of 21 tone films, of which eight are already showing. All these films have been made in Berlin.

Treacherous Lion Kills Little Girl Playmate

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 24 (AP)—A captive Mexican lion slew Viola Friesen, two, at her home here last night, betraying confidence built up in hours of play. He was killed for the treachery.

The child chose to visit the Lion, staked out in the yard at the home, while her sister, Sarah, 15, and a brother, Harry, 16, took clothes from a line.

The animal, owned by C. Coley operator of a jungle show in winter quarters here, sprang as she approached. The other children were unable to beat him from her throat. Coley, attracted by their screams, killed the lion with a hammer.

Viola, her jugular vein severed, died in a hospital. Coley was booked on a charge of negligent homicide.

Alma Rubens Goes to Long Rest Today

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 24 (INS)—Funeral services for Alma Rubens, brunette star of motion pictures, will be conducted at 1 p. m. today in the Little Church of the Flowers in Glendale. Following the services, the body will be taken to Fresno, where it will be buried in the family crypt.

Jugoslavians Are Urged to Stay Home

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Jan. 24 (AP)—Asserting that earning a living is easier in Jugoslavia than in the United States and other countries where immigration is controlled by the quota system, the Zagreb emigration organization, in a pamphlet issued today, urges Jugoslavs to remain at home.

REWARDS OF OPERATIC PARADISE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IF THESE be perilous days in the theater you'll discover few scars on that voice-lifting body known as the Chicago Civic Opera Company. For, within the next two weeks, something like $200,000 will be poured into the coffers of Mr. Insull's pet organization of art and aria. What its effect may be upon the more modest offerings of downtown playhouses may well be left to the imagination.

* * *

AS OPERA SEASONS in Boston now seem to be limited to two weeks of what Chicago is able to provide, music lovers who prefer their programs on the grand scale find themselves compelled to concentrate attention between two narrow points on the January calendar. The next two weeks, therefore, are the season's happiest days for those who wear ermine and jewels—and can absorb a tune besides. There were days when Boston had its own fine operatic organization; when Henry Russell gave us 18 weeks, or less, of opportunity to enjoy the best of the grand old music dramas. There were other times when New York's own Metropolitan made annual foray into these regions and returned home with full pockets.

Nicholas Young

* * *

BUT ALTHOUGH times are changed, and opera locally seems partially eclipsed, there is always a warm welcome for the visiting vocalists from Chicago. In something of bi-coast-across-the-continent fashion the Chicago Civic Opera Company will find itself responding to cheers at the Boston Opera House on Monday night when the Wagnerian bugles blow their first blasts for the enduring "Lohengrin." Like all that have preceded it, this season of Chicago opera will find recompense in its hearty reception and the hard Yankee dollars it will haul away.

* * *

COINCIDENT with the arrival of opera the secondary news of the week emerges from lowly burlesque with the final curtain tonight of Mutual's "Dimpled Darlings," the Gayety Theater will cease to be a unit in the Mutual circuit—will close its doors and leave the town's burlesque businessmen to the Old Howard and to Mr. Charles Waldron's Pantheon on Hanover st. The season has not been fruitful for burlesque. The Mutual circuit, piloted by I. M. Herk, started the season with 39 theaters and 39 shows, the operations extending from Boston to Kansas City. Then came gradual, persistent shrinkage until now there are not more than 20. If that many, units alive and doing business.

* * *

RUMORS THAT are not verified mist; that the Gayety will remain closed only a few weeks; that it will be, or already has been, taken into the chain of houses conducted by E. M. Loew, whose specialty is pictures and vaudeville. That persistent flim, it seems, is always ready to lay holes, hands upon the legitimate's dead and dying.

INCA LEGACY IN MUSIC

The music of the Harbach-Romberg-Caesar romance, "Nina Rosa," which comes to the Majestic, Monday night, is unique on the American stage, since it comprises, within its score, not only music of the most tunefully modern American character, but also Inca ceremonial music and Peruvian folk tunes that never have been heard north of the Isthmus of Panama. Some have not been heard outside of the region of Cuzco, an ancient city that has grown up on the site of an Inca settlement that was a thousand years old at the birth of Christ.

This music is based on an ancient system of scales and obsolete orchestration and was originally intended to be played on instruments that have not existed for centuries and have never been known in civilized orchestras.

GALA THE CUE FOR SEASON OF OPERA

With Wagner's "Lohengrin," the Chicago Civic Opera Company opens next Monday evening at the Boston Opera House, for its annual fortnight in this city. Egon Pollak, who appeared for the first time in Boston last season, will conduct. In this opera Emma Redell will make her debut in Boston, and will sing the role of Elsa. Maria Olszewska will be heard again as Ortrud and Rene Maison as Lohengrin.

Boston will hear for the first time Rudolf Bockelmann, baritone of the Hamburg State Opera and Covent Garden, who joined the Chicago Civic Opera Company this season. He will sing the role of Telramund. Alexander Kipnis, one of Boston's favorites, will be heard again as King Henry.

This season shows every indication of being the most brilliant of the eight seasons given thus far by this company. Seventeen different operas and a ballet will be presented.

Due to the sudden illness of Rosa Raisa, the managing committee of the Boston-Chicago Opera Association has been obliged to make two changes in the previously announced repertory of the Chicago Civic Opera Company.

On Tuesday evening next "Il Trovatore" will be given instead of "The Jewels of the Madonna," Claudia Muzio and Antonio Cortis will appear.

On Saturday evening next "La Traviata" will be substituted for "The Masked Ball." John Charles Thomas will sing on this evening as originally stated and the management announces that in this opera Vito Schipa, the noted lyric tenor, will sing Alfredo to Madam Muzio's famous Violetta.

Concert Tomorrow

Under the auspices of the Screen Guild the Chamber Orchestra of Boston, conducted by Nicolas Slonimsky, will give tomorrow afternoon the first of a series of Concerts of Modern Music.

MOTHER NATURE BEST GUIDE IN STAGE CRAFTSMANSHIP

By DAVID BELASCO

Producer of "It's a Wise Child" at the Tremont

In making a play I stick close to Mother Nature. When I begin work I shut myself up for complete concentration. I think—just think, think, think. At last something comes, the merest germ of a plot and from that germ, slowly but surely the foundation structure of my play grows. Thus far I have concerned myself with the main plot only.

Next I concern myself with the motive. One reason why such countless numbers of would-be-dramatists go down in defeat is that they do not furnish any satisfying motive to account for their dramatic action. Their characters go many interesting things, many most dramatic situations arise in the course of their play's unweaving, their men and women say clever and apropos things, but why? The dramatist to write a successful drama, must furnish a compelling motive for everything that goes on the stage, a motive that dominates everything and everybody.

David Belasco

The hero and heroine. One must dominate and both must be clear-cut and well defined in my imagination. The other people necessary to unfold my drama, I introduce as I need them, and frequently after introducing them I find that I can get along better without them and so I cut them out the next time that they bob up.

A good rule for the dramatist is to eliminate everybody that he possibly can. In this way we get simplicity and directness.

Now we have got the period, the plot, and the characters and the compelling motive. It now remains to write the dialogue. I work myself up until I feel each character, then I dictate and accompany everything with "business." One stenographer takes down my words and another watches my movements and takes down the accompanying "business."

Afterwards I change certain things but my love scenes, my mad scenes and my emotional scenes. For form's sake I make some directions in my manuscript, but these are liable to change from day to day until the dress rehearsal of the play.

In this way and in this way only, I get spontaneity, grace and naturalness.

Rudy Vallee Schedule

The schedule for Rudy Vallee's appearances today at the Metropolitan follows: A. M., 10:59. P. M., 12:40, 3:03, 8:17, 7:31, 9:41.

ARBOS LEADS SYMPHONY IN CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

Enrique Fernandes-Arbos, Spanish musician, conducts this week's Symphony concerts, while Mr. Koussevitzky completes his annual mid-winter leave. The visiting conductor chose a program that begins with a Suite of Corelli, heard in its present form for the first time in Boston, Cesar Franck's D Minor Symphony, a suite drawn from de Falla's "El Amor Brujo" ("Love the Sorcerer") and two piano pieces of Albeniz, "El Albaicin" and "Navarra," translated for orchestra by the conductor.

Mr. Arbos pleased when he conducted as guest at a pair of concerts here a couple of years ago. At yesterday's matinee the audience was similarly impressed, for it applauded with vigor at the conclusion of each piece. The visiting Spaniard quite obviously knows the conductorial "business." As the orchestra played the Spanish works under his direction the music called up most graphic images. De Falla's acidic score did not have quite the sting Mr. Koussevitzky drew from it, as we recall, but the result was more colorful. In the Albeniz pieces, moreover, Mr. Arbos indicated he is an able orchestrator as well.

Of the performance of the Franck Symphony we write with greater reservations. Mr. Arbos is a member of that school (which includes Mr. Koussevitzky, incidentally) which dramatizes Franck's mighty masterpiece. Much as we like this conception—for Franck's angelic mysticism is now an exploded myth—it seemed to us that Mr. Arbos overdramatized. Before the Symphony had been completed the brasses were fairly shrieking. There was exaggerated bringing out of inner voices—and lower voices, too, notably the double-basses. The reading was so intensely "human" that it became almost hysterical.

The orchestra played unusually well under Mr. Arbos, achieving at times notable sonority and great variety of color.

Vamp's Victim

ALFREDA SILL
MISS SILL finds life in "Dracula" just one narrow escape after another. (Lyric).

GOES OUT FOR THE LAUGHS

Elaine Temple, appearing in the sparkling comedy, "June Moon" at the Wilbur, has her own pet ideas as to what constitutes a winning comedienne. Her first theory is that people would rather look at the face that is always smiling, even if it is homely, than at sad-eyed, doleful beauty.

"There is a much larger field for comedy work than for dramatic," declares Miss Temple. "Besides, it is so much more interesting. Laughter is healthy, and there isn't half enough of it in the world, and too few people are ready to be amused by the little events of the day. My theory of eternal youth, and incidentally, a measure of beauty, is to cultivate a sense of humor—to train one's self to see the funny side of life and to laugh, and laugh, and laugh."

REALISM IS THE EXACT MEASURE

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

GOOD PICTURES are like good blotting paper; the more they absorb, the better they are. This suggests a fine test for a film; if it lifts you out of yourself, intrigues you, enmeshes you, incites your imagination, coils its plot about you and makes you live it, and so absorbs your attention that you forget it is only a screen make-believe—then that is real motion picture. Few movies since the talkies came in have met this test. For one, "Disraeli" did. And so does "Little Caesar."

* * *

BY A RARE combination of magnificent direction and marvelous acting, "Little Caesar" passes into record as a splendid photoplay, almost flawlessly contrived, and acutely gripping as it speeds fast on its way. It merits a longer stay than one week at RKO Keith's, to which it comes as the third classy offering that house has had in one row during the past weeks. And it gives to the silver sheet what will remain an outstanding personal achievement of the year, the performance of Edward G. Robinson in the title role. Always sterling, this actor steps into the stellar class, perfectly portraying his part of a Chicago gang leader. He dominates his audience; in and out he weaves his way to the dramatic climax, holding his beholders taut to the last gasp.

Edward G. Robinson

* * *

FROM SMALL TOWN gunman, Robinson, with his pal, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., goes to the big city. Robinson links his fortunes up with a gangster whom he in time outplants as chief. Fairbanks tries to break away, because of the influence of his girl friend. He is forced to be in on a robbery; he sees Robinson commit murder. The leader climbs and climbs; quick on the trigger, he lets nothing stand in his way. He aspires to be gangland's "big boss." He sends for Fairbanks, demands that he "drop" his "sweetie." The youth refuses. Robinson does the one "soft" thing of his career: he has come to kill; but his trigger finger fails him now. This is the beginning of the end. The girl notifies the police. Robinson flees. Then quickly, the finish.

* * *

SURE AND SWIFT is Mervyn LeRoy's direction; he bares the stark panorama. Men move, guns bark, "plot thickens." It is clearcut and cleancut. The love theme is happily subordinated; there is no mushiness. The story strikes along with the incisive bite of a cold chisel. There is no hero; there is no heroine. "Little Caesar" becomes like a page out of the book of life; so real does it seem that you have probably forgotten for the time that it is only a picture after all.

* * *

PHOTOGRAPHY AND dialogue are superb. Robinson is the master actor; he has capable aid from most of the cast, notably young Fairbanks, William Collier, Jr., Thomas Jackson, Stanley Fields and Maurice Black.

"Little Caesar" absorbs the soul of you as much as good blotting paper takes up the ink.

Looks Like Serious Business

ROBERT MONTGOMERY AND GRETA GARBO
OVER AN empty tea cup Mr. Montgomery and Miss Garbo give solemn consideration to their problems in that stirring screen play, "Inspiration," now showing at Loew's State.

Smile That Lures the Victim

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, JR., AND GLENDA FARRELL
THERE'S SURELY something amiss here, for Mr. Fairbanks looks it and Miss Farrell's smile bears a discrediting slant. It's in "Little Caesar" current at RKO Keith's.

The New Plays

PLYMOUTH—Frank Morgan in "Topaze," a comedy by Marcel Pagnol. Adaptation by Benn W. Levy. An amusing tale of conscience and reputation. In the supporting cast are Catherine Willard, Clarence Derwent and Harry Davenport. Staged by Stanley Logan; presented by the Professional Players.

* * *

TREMONT—"It's a Wise Child," a comedy by Laurence E. Johnson. Story of American life and its misadventures. Included in the cast are Minor Watson, Sidney Toler, Harlan Briggs, Mildred McCoy, Leila Bennett, Helen Lowell and Porter Hall. Produced and staged by David Belasco.

* * *

MAJESTIC—"Nina Rosa," romantic musical play. Book by Otto Harbach; music by Sigmund Romberg; lyrics by Irving Caesar. Included in the cast are Guy Robertson, Margaret Carlisle, Armida, Leonard Ceeley, Don Barclay, Marion Marchante and Cortes and Peggy. Staged by J. C. Huffman; produced by the Shuberts.

* * *

Just an Untamed New Reporter

ROBERT HENDERSON
THEY NEEDED a smart, irrepressible news chaser to give "The Racket" its most amusing as well as most intense moments. Here he is at the Copley sketched by Schmidt.

Plays Remaining

"The Racket" at the Copley. (Second week.) What the dramatist thinks of Chicago gangland. The lively story of one police captain that could not be reached. High speed melodrama. The last week.

* * *

"A Wonderful Night" at the Shubert. (Second week.) The incomparable melodies of Johann Strauss, which make "Die Fledermaus" the most tuneful of Continental opera, turned into comic opera. The season's smashing musical hit.

* * *

"Dracula" at the Lyric. (Third week.) Vampire mystery play designed from Bram Stoker's popular novel. Hair lifting situations race from curtain to curtain, all of them concerning a much pursued heroine.

* * *

"June Moon" at the Wilbur. (Fourth week.) Back of the scenes in a song writing establishment. Lyricists and composers meet on even terms and out of many tribulations is formed a comedy of rich amusement. The last week.

* * *

"Strictly Dishonorable" at the Colonial. (Fifth week.) In which you get a good view of the speakeasy business and a working knowledge of what goes on behind the barred doors. The last week.

MOVIE ROLE FOR WIDOW OF SILLS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 24—Doris Kenyon is coming home. She went to New York immediately after the death of Milton Sills to resume her musical studies, but First National has invited her to play one of the leading roles in "You and I," and she has accepted.

Going to First National studios will be another home coming for Doris for it was at that studio that she made most of her pictures and it was at First National that she and Milton worked side by side. Doris' health is much better and she is a much better frame of mind, her friends will be glad to know, than she was at the time of her husband's death. We will all be glad to have Doris back among us again.

Louella O. Parsons

* * *

I ASKED Louis B. Mayer if there were any truth in the report that Wallace Beery had been cut-ted to the First National list. He looked at me as if I had suddenly gone stark mad.

"Why, Mr. Beery has a contract with us for three years," he said. "And I have never had any reason to believe he is dissatisfied."

Apparently there is also mutual satisfaction between Reginald Denny and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Not only have they signed him on a long term contract but they have bought "Stepping Out," an Elmer Harris play, for his next. Charles (Chuck) Reisner will direct and it is going to give Mr. Denny a chance to do the sort of sprightly comedy in which he made such a success a few years ago at Universal.

* * *

WHAT IS GOING to happen to Ruth Chatterton? Her contract with Paramount doesn't expire until October. What is there to prevent Paramount putting her into mediocre vehicles? Ruth is leaving today for New York with her husband, Ralph Forbes, to be gone on a month's vacation. This is the vacation she hoped to spend in Europe, but Paramount is going to get just as many pictures out of Miss Chatterton before she leaves them as possible.

* * *

SNAPSHOTS of Hollywood collected at random: ABE LYMAN getting a million dollar reception from his fans at the Roosevelt hotel when he opened there. ALICE WHITE in a chiffon dress glimpsed among the dancers on the floor. EDDIE SUTHERLAND entertaining a party of friends. BLANCHE SWEET, who leaves Saturday for New York, at DANNY DANKER'S table. MRS. FRANK BORZAGE, the guest of honor at a bon voyage party given to her at the Roosevelt on the eve of her leaving for Honolulu. MRS. JOE E. BROWN entertaining her good looking sister from San Francisco. MRS. ADOLPHE MENJOU and MRS. JACK MULHALL lunching at the Embassy. At an adjoining table JACK MULHALL and JOSEPH SANTLEY who do not look unlike, having their luncheon together. FREDDIE TIMMERMAN, well known New York impresario, greeting old friends at the Embassy. GEORGE ARCHIBALD, veteran newspaper man, and globe trotter, home again after a trip back East. That's all today.

BURLESQUE IS THE THING

The Old Howard for next week has another excellent Mutual burlesque bill as presented by the "Novelties of 1931" Company. As an extra feature the management will offer a singing and dancing favorite, Nora Ford. All followers of burlesque have a liking for this clever little maid. To Harry Clex and Harry Meyers have been assigned the comedy roles. Victoria Mann is the prima donna, and Jackie James is starred. Millard and Anita have a feature alive with pep and speed. "The Dance of the Rose" and "Garden of Girls" are the top scenes.

Nora Ford

In addition the continuous performance is made up of vaudeville stars.

ORPHEUM HAS FINE SHOW

"Reducing," the new Marie Dressler-Polly Moran comedy built around the foibles of a beauty parlor, is the current screening at Loew's Orpheum. On stage is a classy bill. Beth and Betty Dodge, international variety, musical comedy and picture stars, are featured at the head of the well-diversified vaudeville. They offer an original routine of smart songs and steps, being ably assisted by a particularly limber male partner. A highlight of the offering is their distinctive appearance and attire.

George Beatty, styling himself "The Humorocrat," draws hearty laughs with his travesty monologue, "A Foursome of Fun." offers an outdoor comedy skit, "Camping Out," and to complete the bill there are Jack Stanley and Gladys Kerns in a clever two-some offering and "The Four Bards, death-daring acrobats.

Singer of "Blues" Tops Scollay Vaudeville

The Scollay, starting Monday, will feature on stage the "blues" singer, Mamie Smith, who brings with her a group of Negro singers, dancers and comedians. Buddy Walker is held over for a second week, so great is his popularity.

McCormack

It is announced that John McCormack, who gave a benefit recital in Symphony Hall last Wednesday, will make a second appearance there. The Irish tenor will sing on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 8.

BEAUTY IS KEY TO DELIGHT

"The Lady of the Lake," beautifully done, and a travel picture, "Lost Goda," which is very interesting, are the highlights of the new bill at the Repertory. The latter has the voice of Count de Prorok, celebrated explorer.

In "Lost Goda," Count de Prorok shows the opening of the tomb of a Carthagenian dancing girl and with it he re-opened a scandal that enlivened breakfast tables four thousand years ago. Golden cymbals and other requisites of her art told him her occupation. Not the least of these requisites was a vanity case containing seven different shades and types of rouge. But there were, also, jewels, ornaments of gold and silver, containers for food and wines and many other indications that she had been the favorite of some rich playboy of Carthage's Broadway.

Rachmaninoff Tomorrow

Rachmaninoff will give a recital tomorrow afternoon in Symphony Hall at 3:30. The Russian pianist will then be heard in: Andantino and Variations, by Schubert-Tausig; Davidsbundlertanze, by Schumann; Scherzo in E minor, and Scherzo in B flat minor, by Chopin; Prelude in C major, and Etude Tableau, his own compositions, and Etude in D flat major, Valse Impromptu, and Carnaval de Pesth, by Liszt.

GRETA GARBO IN PICTURE AT STATE

The program for the Loew Festival month brings another screen ace to the State. The star is no other than Greta Garbo, this time shining in "Inspiration." With a story even more old fashioned than that given her in "Romance," Miss Garbo makes the role assigned her, and the photoplay her own. Herself rising to the heights, she carries her vehicle to a place higher than it merits, which is but proof of that great histrionic power which this actress possesses.

"Inspiration" is supposed to be modeled after Alphonse Daudet's "Sapho," which made stage history in its day and generation. But like many another classic, the theme would have ordinarily little appeal for the present run of theatergoers, unless brightened by a woman of vast talents. Such is Miss Garbo; she writes the modern appeal into an oldtime motivation, and by her acting makes "Inspiration" a movie worth seeing.

Fans will remember what she and Lewis Stone and Gavin Gordon did for "Romance." Mr. Stone remains with her; instead of the capable Mr. Gordon appears now a youngster who has been fast rising in Hollywood, Robert Montgomery. Mr. Stone is superb; Mr. Montegomery is exceptionally good, turning in one of his best characterizations to date.

Clarence Brown is to be credited with the excellent direction of "Inspiration"—H. S.

Won Fame on Air

CAROL DEIS, one-time stenographer, is now a nationally known soprano, having recently won the grand prize of the Fourth National Radio Audition. Miss Deis will be heard tomorrow evening over WEEI at 9:15, during the Atwater Kent Radio Hour.

Chicago Company With Mary Garden Close With "Juggler" Over WBZA at 10

Prior to their departure for Boston, where they will fill a two weeks' engagement, the Chicago Civic Opera Company will be heard in the last of the weekly operatic broadcasts with the presentation of the "Juggler of Notre Dame," heard over WBZA at 10 o'clock tonight. The entire second act and the first half of the third act will be brought to the radio audience.

One of the unusual phases of Massenet's "Juggler," is that, while it was written for men's voices only, the part of Jean the Juggler will be taken by Miss Garden. Miss Garden was assigned to that role when the opera was first produced in this country.

The part of Boniface will be taken by Cesare Formichi and that of the prior by Chase Baromeo. Charles Lauwers will conduct the opera and it will be announced by Wallace Butterworth, whose voice has been heard in the opera broadcasts this winter.

Representative Charles R. Crisp of Georgia will discuss "The House Rules and the Need for Revision" in the Radio Forum heard over the CBS at 9:30 tonight. Before his election to the House 15 years ago, Crisp served as parliamentarian under the speakership of the late Champ Clark. Crisp's father formerly held the speakership.

Those who, like Crisp, believe the rules should be changed, charge that the present order gives too much power to the committee on rules, and permits a strangling of legislation approved by a majority of legislators.

Cardinal Under Knife

Rome, Jan. 24 (AP)—Cardinal Scapinelli, who has been ill for several weeks, today underwent an operation. Physicians said his condition was not alarming.

DAISY MAY GO ON PROBATION

over the verdict in the Bow house hold, where the red-haired actress is ill with a cold.

"For Daisy's sake, I hope the court will be lenient," said Clara, who accused Miss De Voe of stealing $15,045.55.

"She was the best friend I had in the world."

And Clara's sniffles might as well have been for Daisy as from the cold.

The court set Monday for passing of sentence. Conviction on the one count carries a penalty of one to ten years in San Quentin penitentiary.

A petition for probation will be prepared immediately and submitted to the court, defense attorney Nathan Freedman announced. Deputy Dist. Atty. David Clark, who handled the prosecution, said he would not oppose it.

COMPROMISE VERDICT

Jurors said a terrific struggle preceded the compromise verdict, which they said was arrived at while the jury stood eight to four for acquittal. Two women jurors, they reported, held out for conviction on all of the 35 counts, which involved the alleged theft of $15,870 from the actress.

Directed by the court to continue their deliberations after they twice had reported inability to agree, the jury finally picked one of the counts charging the theft to $625 two days before Daisy was fired as Clara's secretary, and voted a conviction.

One of the women jurors, Mrs. Mary A. Everett, mother of two grown daughters, admitted leading the fight for conviction "as a lesson to other young girls." She said the count on which Daisy was convicted was picked "more or less at random."

LESSON TO YOUNG GIRLS

"There is no bitterness on my part toward Miss De Voe," she added. "I did my best to give young girls a lesson."

Drawn by the promise of an exposé of the private life of the film "It" girl, when Daisy threatened to "tell all" about Clara at the trial's outset, capacity crowds jammed the courtroom. When the red-haired actress took the stand early in the trial and identified a heap of telegrams and letters from her boy friends containing impassioned endearments, the appetites of the curious were whetted.

When Daisy took the witness chair and began to detail life in the Bow residence, with poker parties, liquor purchases and other intimate phases brought to the fore, interest reached fever pitch.

Then Judge Doran put a damper on the sensational proceedings by ruling no more mud-slinging was necessary to determine the guilt or innocence of the frail ex-secretary.

DAISY REGAINS CALM

While going through the formalities of becoming a prisoner in the county jail, the familiar personality of Miss De Voe began to assert itself. By the time she was led away to a cell, the girl was again calm.

RADIO Personalities

To provide against emergencies, none of which has ever arisen, TOSCHA SEIDEL carries a spare violin whenever he broadcasts... VINCENT SOREY, already broadcasting 40 times weekly over the CBS, has been booked to direct his new orch in the Club Belleau, N. Y. ... LOWELL THOMAS keeps five secretaries busy typing out answers to his fan mail, which he personally dictates. Even signing the letters is a day's work in itself. It looks very much like AMOS 'n' ANDY will make another movie, shortly. For the past week the boys have been conferring with the Chicago executive of Radio Pictures

ACTION NEAR ON WINE PRODUCTS

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Pushed forward by the suggestions of the Wickersham report, the question of possible government action on the sales of grape concentrates, easily convertible into wine, again is before government officials.

Such sales were flayed by the Law Enforcement Commission with the assertion they are conducted "on a large scale with federal aid," and a suggestion was made for an amendment of the Volstead Act to curb this activity.

"Why it should be penal to make wine commercially for use in homes and not penal to make in huge quantities the material for wine making and set up an elaborate selling campaign for disposing of them," the report asserted, "is not easily apparent."

Nevertheless, there appears little possibility of immediate concerted federal action in this direction. Prohibition officials and Attorney-General Mitchell maintain their usual strict silence in connection with grape concentrate.

Several weeks ago, the Attorney-General indicated that the Justice Department might make a statement to clarify the Government's stand, but this has not yet been done. Prohibition Director Woodcock said that if sales campaigns show "intent" to violate the prohibition law they will be acted against.

Woodcock announced that recent arrests of grape concentrate salesmen were made on the initiative of local dry agents, and not by order from Washington

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

Colt Hopes to Hit Clues in Peddler's Road

How the Story Started

Geraldine Foster, a very attractive young reception clerk in the Washington sq. office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell, "Laughing Doctor," vanished from her Morningside Heights apartment in The Esplanade on the night before Christmas. Her roommate, Betty Canfield, reported her disappearance to police three days after Christmas and appealed directly to Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt for aid. He went himself to the apartment to search and question Betty. Torn letters of Geraldine's interested Colt. Then he visited Dr. Maskell, who told of a mysterious dark woman caller.

(Now Go on)

CHAPTER 3

Who Is Ephraim?

THE WHOLE nation-wide quest for the missing Geraldine seemed to be fruitless, as day followed day without results. Seven times, during those busy days, Geraldine Foster was reported found, but all were frauds. Such disappointments are an inevitable part of all such girl-hunts, for no fair-seeming clue can be ignored.

Confusing Clues

But Thatcher Colt, at times neglecting other important duties, stuck to the case. What clues there were seemed inadequate and confusing. There was, for example, what Thatcher Colt referred to as the "Clue of Ephraim Foster." This was unearthed in some of the letters which Geraldine had written home and which the Commissioner studied with great care. Among them, he found the reason why Geraldine had taken to telling her friends she was royal blood in her veins. She had got the idea from letters written to her by one Ephraim Foster, of Willoughby, Kansas. This Mr. Foster was tracing the genealogical history of the Foster family, writing to every one by the name of Foster he could find and intended to write a book on the subject.

"We come from the groins of kings," wrote the old gentleman to Geraldine, in a letter which the girl had sent proudly home to her parents.

I greatly admired the precision and despatch with which Colt acted on that seemingly trivial clue. He called six detective sergeants into his office, read them the letter and showed them the open pages of a telephone book.

"Divide up the Fosters among yourselves," ordered Colt. "Call them and find out how many received similar letters."

By five o'clock the next afternoon, we knew that none of the several hundred Fosters living in New York had received such a letter. Apparently the ancestor-enthusiast, Ephraim Foster, had written only to the girl who now could not be found. A set expression was in my chief's eyes as he dictated a wire to the Chief of Police Willoughby, Kansas, asking for information about Ephraim Foster.

I remember that I sent that telegram on the night of January 6. The reply that came the following morning greatly astonished us:

"Ephraim Foster had post-office box here last summer. Understand not a man but a woman. Did not live in town but drove in from some other town to get her mail. Anything we can do?

"Chief of Police Dewyre."

Keenly aroused by this unexpected development, Thatcher Colt wired him to follow any trace as far as possible. While he realized that this might have no relation to the disappearance, it looked sufficiently peculiar to follow through. But before we had heard again from the West, there came a new development that drove all other matters temporarily from our minds.

Clue Found

This new development was the finding of the fragments of the second—which I have called the blackmail—note of Geraldine Foster. It was just at the noon hour [illegible] Betty Canfield called the office and talked to Thatcher Colt. Presently he turned from the telephone, his face glowing with excitement.

"Betty Canfield has found the missing pieces of that note. They were behind the desk drawer," he exclaimed. "Funny —I looked there, too. Get on the telephone extension, Tony, and take down the contents of the message in shorthand while she reads it to me."

Two seconds later I was listening in and copying down the following:

"My Dear Casanova:

"There is nothing you can do about it. If I tell, your happiness will be destroyed. What is the small amount I need com-

GANG WAR LOOMS IN THEFT OF 'ARSENAL'

G. G. A. Seeks Lower Boston Tax Rate

DROP SEEN AS AID TO BUSINESS

Mayor Declares Speeding Up of Work Has Kept Bread Line From Boston

A lower Boston tax rate is demanded in another "blast" issued today by the Good Government Association, which yesterday assailed the letting of public works department contracts without advertising.

"One of the most effective ways to hasten the business recovery is to lower our tax rate, already one of the highest adjusted rates of any city in the United States over 500,000 population," says today's statement, issued by Secretary S. S. Sheppard.

"This can be accomplished through greater efficiency and business-like buying by the city."

MAYOR ANSWERS ATTACK

Mayor Curley's reply to yesterday's attack was a statement declaring that paving contracts were let with all possible speed to avoid soup kitchens and bread lines. Chairman Frank A. Goodwin of the Finance Commission, also defended the administration.

In reply to this, Secretary Sheppard says:

"At least one important thing has been accomplished. The veil is off City Hall and the Finance Commission. Citizens may see them as they actually are.

"The most amazing of Mayor Curley's declarations is that "the ethics of things does not enter into it when we have to deal with business depression and suffering among our people.' The veil is off."

NO SOUP KITCHENS

The mayor's statement, made by long distance telephone from New York, was as follows:

"We have no soup kitchens or bread lines in Boston and we are not going to have any if I can prevent it. I can assure you that things are being done honestly in the interests of the people who are suffering because of conditions for which they are not to blame.

"Our job in these times is to keep the people at work, and to spend money that is available to keep them at work. The ethics of things does not enter into it when we have to deal with business deression and suffering among our people."

Funeral Rites for Mrs. Coady Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret C. Coady, 55, who died at her home, 78 Tremont st., Charlestown, last night, will be held Monday morning at St. Mary's Church at 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Coady, mother of Capt. James E. Coady, past commander of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, and probation officer of the Charlestown court, passed away in the same house where she has lived for the past 50 years. She was the oldest parishioner of St. Mary's Church. She is survived by two other sons, Daniel J. and Edward L. Coady. Interment will be in Holy Cross Cemetery in Malden.

Miss Sally Curley Ill With Influenza

Miss Sally Curley, 23-year-old daughter of John J. Curley, former city treasurer of Boston, and a niece of Mayor James M. Curley, is critically ill from influenza at the family home, 52 Winthrop st., Roxbury.

A Photographic Trick

NO, IT ISN'T FALLING DOWN. It's just a funny picture of the Custom House tower, that is, if you think it's funny. Sort of a trick to look at it—hold it up over the level of your eye and look up at it, and you'll see the tower the way it really looks, 500 feet or so above Boston's waterfront. Maybe it does really lean a little bit, because workmen say that when gales sweep from the Atlantic the building sways. (Associated Press photo.)

HARBOR TUNNEL WORK TO START IN MARCH

Bids Asked on $16,000,000 East Boston Tube; 2000 Are to Get Work

Bids for the $16,000,000 vehicular traffic tube underneath Boston harbor, between Boston and East Boston, were advertised today by Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Transit Commission.

The bids will be opened at noon, Feb. 25. Work, giving employment to approximately 2000 men over a period of two years, will start 10 days after the contract is awarded, probably during the second week in March, it was stated.

PLANS ANNOUNCED

The bids called for by the Transit Commission cover the construction of Section A, which is the actual construction of the tube itself.

In announcing the request for bids, Col. Sullivan also announced the plan of construction.

Section A will be 4850 feet long, one-third of which will be under the harbor from North ave., Boston, to Decatur and London sts., East Boston.

It will be constructed by the shield method of compressed air.

The tube will be circular in shape, 31 feet, 6 inches in diameter and almost 100 feet in circumference. The roadway between the curbs will be 21 feet, 6 inches wide, providing for one traffic line in each direction.

There will be sufficient width, however, to provide for an additional line in case of an emergency.

UNDER 50 BUILDINGS

Col. Sullivan explained that the tube will be built on a straight line and the land portions will run under buildings at varying depths.

The bottom of the tube at a point near the center will be approximately 100 feet deep at high water.

To be constructed of reinforced concrete with an outer shell of steel, it is estimated, according to Col. Sullivan, that 12,000 tons of steel will be used in its building.

More than 150,000 cubic yards of dirt and rock, expected to be removed from the bottom of the harbor, will be deposited at the East Boston Airport.

The successful contractor will have to complete the work within two years, Col Sullivan explained. A forfeiture of $1000 a day, for every day in excess of the stipulated time limit, will be required.

16 Guns Stolen in North End Break

16 WEAPONS STOLEN IN NORTH END STORE

Police Aroused by This and Other Arms Burglaries; Guiffre in Gain

Police girded for an outbreak of gang warfare today with discovery that shortly before daybreak a small arsenal of 16 guns had been stolen from a Hanover st. shop.

The guns are of various kinds, including two sawed-off shotguns of the type with which Carmelo Guiffre was seriously wounded last Saturday afternoon.

They were stolen from the store of P. Amaru at 333 Hanover st., North End, only four doors from the spot where Guiffre was shot down and a stone's throw from police station 1.

Supt. Michael H. Crowley immediately ordered the entire district combed for the thieves and close watch kept on the haunts of all suspected gangsters until further orders.

OTHER GUN THEFTS

Theft of the guns follows a series of similar burglaries from armories and sporting goods stores, which prompted a special order from Police Commissioner Hultman recently, instructing officers to search for stolen weapons.

They were all in a showcase behind which was a door leading to Prines st. The thieves smashed the glass door with a piece of iron ripped from a door, and then reached in and opened the sliding back of the case to get the guns. The piece of iron was found nearby.

A patrolman was placed on guard with orders to allow no one to touch the guns or the door until fingerprint experts reached the scene.

Police pointed out that the advantage in stealing guns is that ownership of a weapon found at a death scene cannot be traced to some purchaser. It was this that caused Commissioner Hultman to issue drastic orders for rounding up scores of stolen weapons.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Other indications of an impending wholesale gang feud are said to have been uncovered since the shooting of Guiffre, who is battling for life at Haymarket Relief Hospital. Guiffre's condition was described as improving today in spite of the fact that it was complicated by pneumonia.

Guiffre was recently acquitted of second degree murder in the shooting of Nate Lerner in the fracas at a veterans' clubhouse in Revere last August. At that time he was badly wounded and escaped death by a hair.

NEW FIGURES ON JOBLESS

Results of the United States Bureau of Census enumeration of unemployed in 20 large cities of the country will soon be available for publication, according to Frank Bane of President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, in a letter to James J. Phelan, chairman of Massachusetts emergency committee on unemployment.

"These figures," writes Bane, "should make it possible to estimate with reasonable accuracy the extent of unemployment in Massachusetts at the present time and to correct the results obtained by using the unemployment index of the Department of Commerce.

Bane's letter was in reply to one from Phelan asking for information as to the number of unemployed in Massachusetts and in the entire country.

In reply to Bane's communication Phelan wrote:

"In our Commonwealth we are confident, through committees reporting unemployment problems that thousands of jobs have been created, most, if you will, temporary, but nevertheless jobs.

"Yet on the plan of the Bureau of Census a large portion of these would be considered as still out of employment."

GARRETT OPENS CASE MONDAY

The trial of Oliver B. Garrett, Mrs. Garrett and Miss Lillian Hatch resumes in Suffolk superior court Monday with a strong possibility that the defense of the trio will be opened some time during the day.

When court opens Monday Wilbur F. Turner, handwriting expert again will take the stand to complete his testimony. He was under direct examination when court adjourned for the week yesterday.

Turner is said to be the last government witness in the case. The completion of his direct examination and his cross examination are not expected to consume much time Monday. It is believed the stage will be set for the presentation of the defense by early afternoon.

Turner took the stand late yesterday afternoon and, after qualifying as an expert, testified that, in his opinion, Garrett wrote his wife's maiden name, Florence H. Reddin, on 19 deposit slips for an account under that name in the Rockland National Bank.

He also testified it was his belief Garrett wrote the name Florence H. Garrett on 27 slips for an account in that name in the Brookline Trust Company. He testified that the names written were in the same handwriting as the signature of Garrett on an application for promotion in the police department.

Blondes, Eggs and Yeggs All Scrambled and $40 Is Gone

Ten rowdies of the hard boiled variety, dozens of eggs, very soft boiled, and two women were mixed up in a "free-for-all" at the Army Base Diner in Summer st., early today, and when the atmosphere had cleared $40 was missing from the till.

It was a "scrambled" affair for awhile and only the arrival of a riot squad from police headquarters halted hostilities.

But the two women, Mrs. Catherine McGrath, 27, of 51 Saxton st., Dorchester, and Miss Madeline Morrissey, 23, of 56 Mt. Vernon st., Somerville, know what it is to "dance with eggs in their eyes."

With their escorts, the blondes dropped into the diner for a bite after a party in Dorchester. While waiting for "ham and . . ." one of the girls dropped a nickel in the mechanical piano.

With the first strains of "I'm Dancing With Tears in My Eyes," the girls and their escorts started to dance. And then came the 10 rowdies. And then came the eggs. Blonde tresses and golden yolks met. To season things up a bit the "yeggs" started hurling salt and pepper shakers.

Mason Doub, the counter man, then became the object of the egg bombardment. Someone doused the lights. Fadeout. The next scene showed an empty cash register. A blonde removed a dripping yoke from her eye.

Then came the police, six of them, but the "yeggs" had "beat it." Mrs. McGrath and Miss Morrissey were detained as material witnesses, as was James J. Fraser, 31, og Goldland st., Mattapan, one of the escorts. The other escort took flight.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or the most unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 16 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

'KILLER' IS HELD IN $17,000

Orrin Lee Taylor, 27, who admits to police last Thursday that he killed Feodor Chychuck, porter in the Puritan Lunch, Back Bay, on April 30, 1927, was held in $17,000 bail today in municipal court.

Taylor faced three charges of robbery, larceny of $400 from a Braintree restaurant and carrying a loaded revolver. The case was continued to Jan. 30 and he was committed to Charles st. jail. He is already held on murder charges.

During his arraignment today it developed that Taylor is wanted in Salem on a charge of non-support of his wife and child. That arrested after the murder of Chychuck it was said.

Police inspectors who checked Taylor's "confession" found the pistol with which he claims he killed Chychuck. It is owned by A. W. Woodruff of Glendale ave. Allston, from whom Taylor said he stole it and to whom he later returned it.

Woodruff admitted these facts and promised to produce it at police headquarters today. Taylor was held without bail for the grand jury in Roxbury court yesterday charged with murder.

Atty. Slattery Is Improving Steadily

Atty. Francis E. Slattery, former chairman of the Boston School-house Board, who has been confined in the Cardinal O'Connell House, St. Elizabeth's Hospital with a severe heart ailment, is greatly improved today, according to attending doctors.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

PLAIN FACTS, NOT FANCIES ON THE SHARKEY MIXUP

FOR THEIR own good, as well as the good of the game, the boxing gentry have to be ruled by an iron hand. Ninety per cent of the fight mob are get-rich-quick schemers who care nothing about the future of the game or perpetuating of boxing as a sport or a business. Weaken authority and you let down the bars to the sharpsters and schemers who have ruined the game before and will do it again.

The Madison Square Garden Corp has committed a serious faux pas in splitting with the New York State Athletic Commission over Jack Sharkey. They have thrown the doors open to the ride or ruin bunch and given the get rich quick crooks the opportunity they so long have been waiting for.

State Athletic Commission and Garden Corp., working together, have held the crooks somewhat in check. Through the Sharkey affair the master minds in the underworld of boxing cleverly have induced the Garden Corp. to flaunt the power that made and protected boxing in New York weak-in the authority exercised over the game and open the door to the parasites who sooner or later will ruin the business and sport of boxing.

Eventually the act of the Garden Corporation will cost the Garden Corporation a pretty penny. Greater than that the opening up of the game to the get rich quick gentry will be felt throughout the country. It may lead to a countrywide ban on the game.

THE TRUTH IN A NUTSHELL

THE NEW YORK STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION is absolutely right in its attitude on Sharkey.

Sharkey is the American heavyweight champion. He won the title in open competition, meeting and defeating all comers. As American champion he is entitled to the world's championship match with Schmeling.

Sharkey is not merely standing on his right as American champion. Last winter he offered to box Young Stribling, who has already had defeated, or any contestant the Garden Corporation or the State Commission should name, in Madison Square Garden for Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Christmas Fund, on the worthy charity Sharkey OFFERED TO BOX STRIBLING FOR NOTHING.

Schmeling scarcely had stopped yelling foul and got up off the floor in his last match with Sharkey before he promised the New York State Athletic Commission he would give Sharkey a return match. The Garden Corporation is supposed to have a signed agreement with Schmeling to that effect.

With these facts in mind how could the New York State Athletic Commission do anything else but insist that Schmeling, who they gave every chance in the world to make good in this country, fulfil his obligations to meet Sharkey?

The Madison Square Garden Corporation hasn't a leg to stand on in its flaunting of the N. Y. Commission and tying up with the crooked gentry which may ruin the game throughout the country as well as the section controlled by the Garden Corporation.

LES CANADIENS ARE UP TO OLD TRICKS

LES CANADIENS seem to be pulling the same strategy that, because of the weird system by which the championship is decided, enabled them to beat the Bruins last year. Anyway the boys from across the border are refusing to extend themselves and are taking things easy, apparently conserving their big efforts for the Stanley Cup playoffs. Incidentally the Bruins don't seem to be burning up more energy than is needed at this stage of the game.

You can't keep a squirrel on the ground and you can't keep Joie Ray out of competition. The veteran who ran more miles under 6:20 than any athlete ever run or probably will run, and who took to Marathoning after his speed deserted him, now is a snowshoe champion. He has entered a 200-mile snowshoe race which will be held in Canada next month.

Considering that Babe Ruth draws $80,000, Hack Wilson, who beat the mighty Babe for home run honors, can't be blamed for thinking he is worth $40,000 to Millionaire Wrigley of the Cubs.

George Godfrey, who Philadelphia promoters want Jack Sharkey to fight again, has been making his living out of wrestling. The giant black tossed Jack Russell down in a Mexico City bull ring last week and is supposed to meet Manrique, the Mexican champion, in the same place tomorrow. He may appear here in the Boston Garden next Friday.

The Curley-Lodge-Fabiani combination have dug up a new wrestler dubbed Ghafoor Ghan, a giant Hindu, who wears a turban 27 yards in length wound around his dome. The turban acts as a shock

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1931

AMATEURS TO BATTLE AT ARENA

By RINGSIDE

Jim Barry, head of the Irish-American A. C. which organization promotes amateur boxing at the Arena Saturday evenings, has invited the visiting amateur boxers of Ireland, Norway and Belgium to witness tonight's contest with our Greater Boston boys.

Whether the visiting boxers will appear at the Arena tonight is all up to themselves. There will be competition in six classes tonight, 126, 135, 147, 160, 175 pounds and heavyweight divisions.

The heavyweight class will feature with Benny Gershaw, new Jewish hefty; with Bob Shore, Roxbury; Joe Carroll, Worcester; Pete Donovan, Lynn and John Hines of Newton. Competition in the other classes should be just as attractive as the past Diamond Belt scraps.

Daniels Will End Training Today

Dick Daniels of Minneapolis will complete his training for his bout with Ernie Schaaf at the Arcone A. A. show, which will be staged at the Arena, Monday evening. Daniels will wind up his training with a session this afternoon at Kelley & Hayes' Gymnasium, and then complete it with a short and light workout on the Sabbath.

Daniels figures that his right hand punches are better than all the class that Schaaf controls as a ring master. This pair should give the Greater Boston boxing fans plenty of thrills.

Matchmaker Eddie Mack has a fine semi-final and preliminary card which will precede the main attraction. Jack Sharkey, of Chestnut Hill and American heavyweight champion, will be in Schaaf's corner to lead his protege on to victory.

The semi-final will have Jack McCarthy of Roxbury clashing with Jack Perry of Worcester.

Arrangements for Mack Special to Miami

The entire itinerary of the Eddie Mack Special, which will transport some 800 more Hub boxing fans to witness the Carnera-Maloney boxing show at Miami, is as follows:

February 28—Leaving Boston, 1:30 p. m., Back Bay Station at 1:35 p. m.

March 1—Two-hour stop over at Southern Pines, N. C., for church services.

March 2—Arrive at Miami. Train parked for occupancy.)

March 3, 4, 5, 6—Stay in Miami.

March 7—Leave Miami at 10:30 p. m.

March 8—Two-hour stop over at Jacksonville, Fla. (For church services.)

March 9—Arrive in Boston, 4:30 p. m.

Governor Ely and Mayor Curley have been invited to be guests on the Jim Maloney Special to Miami to cheer on the Massachusetts' hope for the heavyweight honors.

WARRIORS OF DISTANT NATIONS ARRIVE

ANOTHER WORLD WAR is about to start. This time it will be in the roped ring with Norway, Belgium, Ireland and the United States doing the battling. The foreign armies are shown upon arrival. There are four fighters from each nation, with managers and spokesman. In the front row are Tom Maloney, Bill Cuddy, promoter; Bob Herlihy, Jack Hines and Knut Petersen. In the second row are Reidar Olafsen, Ole Reistand, J. J. Chase, W. R. Murphy, Matt Flannigan, Tom Hickey and Carl Larsen. In the third row are Olav Lund, Jan Arnold, Andre de Haan, Gerard de Leenoli, Peter Brackenlers and Franz van der Auweraer. The boxers plan to go into training immediately for the competition ahead is anything but soft.

SWISS STAR IN K. C. MILE

Dr. Paul Martin, great middle distance runner, may be a competitor in the K. of C. mile, feature distance race of the William C. Prout Memorial track games at the Boston Garden one week from tonight.

The Swiss racer arrived in New York this week from Europe. He worked out on the boat while crossing the ocean and is in good condition.

Doctor Martin, who holds an M. D. degree, is a citizen of Switzerland but because he served an internship in New York last year. He joined the New York A. C. He represented that club in races at many of the big meets, winning the 1000 yards run for the national indoor championship.

He was a competitor in the Prout games at the Garden last year in the 1000-yard run. Dr. Martin was not in the best of condition at the time. So he received little attention when he trailed home in the race, for Russ Chapman of Bates won in a last minute sprint, defeating Phil Edwards in the major upset of the evening.

Dr. Martin, if he sends along his entry to Jim Gaffney, in charge of the Prout games, will elect to race Ray Conger and other stars in the K. of C. mile.

The entry of Martin will lend to the meet a bit of international color, the only thing now lacking in the lineup of events for the games.

Amateur Ring Champions From Abroad Arrive Here

The amateur boxing champions from Norway, Belgium and Ireland arrived at the South Station this morning after a trip from New York last night and will start training for their debut in this country a week from Monday night at the Boston Garden.

Each team has four members and a manager. The party consisted of 15 in number. The official welcome to the city was given by Bill Cuddy, chairman of the boxing committee of the A. A. U. Ireland sent Mike Flanagan, heavyweight, James J. Chase, middleweight; J. Hickey, welterweight and R. Herlihy, lightweight.

Norway's delegation is made up of Knut Pedersen, heavyweight; Olaf Lund, middleweight; Reidar Olafsen, welterweight and Ole Reiland, lightweight. The Belgium team is made up of Franz van der Auwerser, heavyweight; Joseph Arneul, middleweight; Gerald Delanoy, welterweight, and Joseph de Haan, lightweight.

All are national champions in their respective countries. Flanagan, from Ireland, is considered the best. He is reputed to be the best boxer developed in Ireland in a decade.

His reputation will be given he supreme test a week from Monday night, when the 12 champions meet the simon pures of New England in what appears to be the best international amateur boxing tournament staged in this city in years.

Jack Ryerson Wins Second Title in Week

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24 (AP)—Jack Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., today sported a second amateur golfing title won on Miami courses within a single week.

Ryerson stymied Lee Chase, Buffalo, on the 36th green to win by a one up score yesterday in the Glenn Curtiss amateur trophy tournament. He won the title in the Miami Biltmore invitational last Sunday, defeating T. E. Price, Miami, 7 and 6, in the finals.

STARS LOSE IN COAST GOLF

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (US)—MacDonald Smith played in his first match play tournament in 22 years here and was eliminated in the first round.

Smith was beaten on the 18th hole by Ralph Guldahl, youthful flash from Dallas, Tex., in the first round of play in the motion picture executives' charity match play $5000 tournament at Riviera.

Walter Hagen, "king of the pros," was ousted in the first round by Willard Hutchinson of the Pasadena Golf Club, 3 and 2.

Horton Smith was beaten in the first round by Neil Christian of Portland, Ore., 3 and 2.

George von Elm, former national amateur champion, who tied for first place in the Agua Caliente open, lost in the morning round to Chet Beer of Bakersfield, 2 and 1.

Craig Wood met defeat, 2 up, at the hands of Fred Morrison, former Midwick professional.

Eddie Loos was beaten by Eric Seavall of Los Angeles, 5 and 4, in the first round.

John Golden, who won from George von Elm in the playoff for the Agua Caliente championship, was beaten in the second round by Tony Manero, of Elmsford, N. Y., on the 22d hole.

Joe Turnesa was beaten by Seavall in the afternoon in 21 holes.

Abe Espinosa fell before Christian in the afternoon, 1 up.

WHIPS CHARLESTOWN, 5-0, AT ARENA; B.C.H. BEATS MEMORIAL SEXTET, 2-0

Brighton high retained its lead in the Boston high school hockey league by defeating Charlestown, 5 to 0, in the first game of seven staged at the Boston Arena this morning. The victory was Brighton's fourth straight win of the season.

Jamaica Plain conquered South Boston, by a 3 to 0 count, to climb into second place with seven points. In the other games of the day B. C. High downed Memorial, 2 to 0; Hyde Park edged East Boston, 2 to 0, and Commerce and Mechanic Arts and Latin and Dorchester fought through 30 minutes of hockey to scoreless ties. Trade and English also finished in a deadlock, 1 to 1.

Harrington and Murphy Star

The finest performances of the morning were turned in by Harrington and Murphy, stars of the Brighton sextet. Murphy scored a pair of goals unassisted, and passed to Harrington, who scored another. Harrington himself once on a solo dash through the Charlestown team, and passed to Murphy for the other Brighton goal. Paul Dailey also plays well for Brighton.

Chuck Avery and Dick Harris were the scorers for the winning Hyde Park six. Harris scored the first goal on a pass from Avery. The latter shoved home the disk later in the game.

Bud Phelan of Jamaica Plain aided his club to pump to second place in the league when he slipped through the South Boston defense, in the first period and shot the puck past Segadelli, Southie goalie. Charley Hoar of J. P., copped the second and third goals, scoring each time unassisted.

Bill Shannahan, B. C. high captain and right wing, and Curran, scored for the Eaglets as the private school team beat out Memorial, 2 to 0.

Dorchester and Latin Late Starting

Latin and Dorchester were billed to play in the third gae of the day but due to a delay the teams were the last to play.

In the final minutes of the contest all the Latin forwards and defense men went up the ice, keeping the action in Dorchester territory, in a vain endeavor to score.

English scored in the first period to take a lead on Trade, but Biggiow of Trade passed to Greco less than a minutes after the second period opened, and Greco scored. The teams remained one all through the remainder of the fray.

Commerce and Mechanic Arts also battled to a scoreless tie.

Gorman Would Buy Ottawa Franchise

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (AP)—T. P. "Tommy" Gorman, former manager of the Ottawa Senators, National Hockey League Club, today entered the lists as a prospective purchaser for the once-famous team.

Gorman, now assistant manager of the Jockey Club at Agua Caliente, Mexico, sent word he would consider purchase of the team "at a reasonably figure."

Scandal Overshadows Trip of Boston Hockey Club

'LIE' CHARGE HURLED BY PLAYER

By BILL GRIMES

With the Boston Hockey Club on the high seas headed for Krynica, Poland, the scandal predicted in these columns on Thursday is beginning to crop out.

Like the announcement that an individual had donated $250 towards the expenses of the Boston Hockey Club, while in reality the $267.45 was the club's money, the statement that "Dick" Hall was unable to get his passport was a deliberate lie, according to the player.

"Monday evening," writes Hall, "we had our pictures taken at the Boston Arena, with the understanding that I was to be one of the 16 to make the trip to Poland. This had been understood for over a week.

"I left Manager Walter Brown Monday evening telling him I would have my passport and photograph all o. k. by three o'clock Tuesday, which was an hour before he was supposed to pick them up. And I did."

"Mr. Bolda, of the passport agency, told me my passport examination was o. k. and it was to be picked up later by Mr. Brown.

"Seemingly unknown to me, there was a meeting at the Boston Arena Tuesday evening of which I was not notified and knew nothing about, at which time, I guess, I was, as you might say, 'relegated' out.

"I called Walter Brown at the Arena at 8:30 a. m. Wednesday at which time he left me to be at the Arena, ready to go, at 1 p. m. I was there but Walter Brown WAS NOT, or could I find him. One of the boys there told me that my passport had not got by on time, which I knew was wrong. I then called Mr. Bolda, at the passport agency and asked him if there was anything wrong with my passport. He told me, it was o. k. but when the others were picked up, he was told, I was not going. That was at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

"I did not tell Bolda at the time if it was too late to straighten things so I could make the trip. He said it was not. I then went to see the treasurer, of which time I found out about the meeting on Tuesday evening and when him it was not too late to do thing then and he said it was not enough money.

"Remember, Bill, after ... ing my business, hiring ... man, getting some ... bidding my family good-bye, getting to Boston to entrain by 5 o'clock ... out that Walter Brown manager of the Boston Club, and one of ... friends had decided to ... other man in my place ... had not played in a game ... ton Hockey Club all season.

"I wish that you would rectify that article about not getting my passport, as it is all wrong. I was just left out by Walter Brown and some of his closer friends as that they could take a man in my place who is a closer friend than myself.

"I make you sorry much for your trouble, I am sure.

"Yours truly,

(Signed) "Walter B. Hall."

Men Responsible Should Be Ousted From Sport

The Hall end, which was an well engineered, is along the same lines as the meeting held by the Boston Hockey Club before the game during which Bill Flynn, the organizer, was ousted.

Just why the climax responsible for the Hall and Flynn episode allowed to remain in sport is unexplainable. They have been implicated in practically every known brand of intrigue but being past masters at the art of passing the buck, they have managed to allow their understrappers to hold the bag.

Newton Favorite in Track Meet With Brookline

By BILL CONNELL

Newton high school will be a heavy favorite going into the first of its two winter track meets with Brookline, at the latter ... today.

... exception of one event ... Newton boys are likely to capture ... the first place ... and the team may win by the biggest score ever ... totalled in the years of track rivalry between the schools.

Each Winter two Brookline-Newton meets are listed, one at the Newton drill shed and the other at the Brookline outdoor track in the yard of the high school. Points are totalled for the two meets to decide the indoor season's victor.

Capt. Lindsay Brigham, 600-yarder, is Brookline's big hope in the running events. Brigham, fast and possessing a lot of courage, is one of the best in the state in his specialty.

Tilden Favorite in 1000-Yard Run

Bob Tilden, in the 1000, is a Brookline boy with perfect running form. His smooth striding is ideal for a middle distance racer but up to this year his youth and lack of training have kept him out of the first place winners. He may manage to win a first for Brookline in the 1000, though he will be pressed by George Lamb and the other Newton 1000-yard notables. Vin and Gus Signore and Art Quincy.

Capt Milton Green of Newton, in the dash and hurdles, is a fine point winner and his efforts may account for a large portion of the Newton tally today.

N.B.A. KNOWS NO MAT CHAMPION

Chicago, Jan. 24 (AP)—The National Boxing Association does not recognize any champion in the field of wrestling, Gen. John V. Clinnin president of the organization, said today.

Gen. Clinnin's statement was made after information that Jim Londos had been circulating a photostatic copy of a reproduction of a letter written by Stanley Isaacs while acting as head of the N. B. A., in 1930, purporting to endorse Londos as the National Boxing Association heavyweight title holder.

"The National Boxing Association, in annual convention at Omaha in October, 1930, eliminated wrestling from its scope of control," Gen. Clinnin said. "Therefore, the N. B. A. repudiates any and all documents or statements that purport to inform the public that it supports any individual group of wrestlers."

MISTER BOSTON

—By Jack Conway—

Mr. Boston says Dick Daniels, Minneapolis heavyweight who meets Ernie Schaaf at the Arena on Monday night, is one of the most natural right hand punchers that has bobbed to the front in the heavyweight class in recent years.

"There are few good right hand punchers among the heavyweights," declared Mr. Boston. "The average big fellow pulls his right duke back a couple of feet before he lets it fly. This is why he misses so much with his blow.

Mr. Boston

"Dempsey, Tunney and Sharkey have done most of their heavy execution with their left dukes. True, they may usually put the finishing wallop over with a right, but they have readied the other fellow up with left jabs and hooks.

"Schmeling's right is better than his left. It was pathetic when Max tried to match left hands with Sharkey. Maybe this was due to the fact, as had been hinted out by Jack Sheehan, that Sharkey has a left hand which is a fifth of a second faster than the famous slim Corbett left.

"Schmeling first gained fame when he knocked out Johnny Risko with a right to the jaw. Max had been tipped that Rahberg Jawn has a habit of pulling back with his left before he lets a hook go. Schmeling waited for his opportunity, and when Johnny pulled back his left, Max cocked his own right and let it go to the chin.

"Two changed Schmeling's style for the Sharkey fight. They did not let him cock his right. They fear Sharkey would knock his head off with a short left hook. Instead, they had Max shooting his right on his chest. He doesn't do so well when following this style. The old dynamite is lacking from his punch when it lands.

"Jim Maloney always had to cock his right to get all of his power behind it. I always thought that Schaaf's best punch was a left hook delivered to either the body or chin."

Daniels Punches Short With His Right

"This youngster Daniels drops a right hand from in front of his shoulder. He does not pull the punch back before he lets it breeze. As a result, it is quite difficult to get away from this blow.

"Mickey Walker plants his right duke on his chest when he parades into action. He starts the punch from this position. It seldom travels far more than a foot and has all of Mickey's power and weight behind it.

"It will be interesting to see how Schaaf acts when clipped on the chin by Daniels' short right. This blow put Johnny Risko and Al Friedman, two of the iron men of the ring, down.

"Schaaf has more ring experience than Daniels, but a smash to the chin can make a veteran forget all he knows about the fine points of the game.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

For the first time in the history of hockey in these parts, to unwritten law among officials was broken when Frank Synnott publicly announced that his co-worker, Ernie Davin, had erred in awarding a goal to Springfield ... the Tigers.

For years development of ... officials has been retarded by ... and guessers but Synnott's lack of co-operation is a class by itself ... as a breach of etiquette.

Right or wrong, officials should and must stick to, their ... hockey creed. If Synnott was sure of himself, why did he not ... verse Davin's decision? Instead, he ... waited until he returned home and ... then came out with the statement ... that the puck was not in the ... and that the Springfield did not deserve the goal.

All this talk regarding the ... ores in chief having full charge of a hockey game is just so much ... honey. They have equal powers. They must work together and just as soon as they start to show each other up, they should be replaced for the good of the game.

The above reference to the Davin incident is not offered as an alibi for the official ... awarded the goal, for it is the ... unanimous opinion of both Springfield and the Tigers that the puck was not in the net.

There are just two grades of officials had and worse. None of them are expected to be perfect but most of them fall far below expectations. However, they could confine their "bones" to the ice, and never pass the buck to a coworker after a game.

Although there are enough officials in the action to carry ... several of the Can Am Leagues have managed to ... outside the use of which ... Shaw, his ...

Raincoats No Longer Needed In Wall Street

Big Fellows Stop Weeping on Every Shoulder; Autos Pick Up

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Jan. 24—At last it has become safe to visit the financial center of the country without wearing a raincoat. Until recent weeks practically every banker was ready to weep on your shoulder.

B. C. Forbes

They now are at least half-inclined to think that, perhaps, after all, the United States may live and some day get back to normal business needs. During November and early December the air was blue with hair-raising calamitous rumors. The mere mention of the word "bear" almost caused an apoplectic fit. The whole financial world was pictured as resting—tossing, rather—on a keg of dynamite, a fatal explosion feared at any moment.

That state of mind, happily, has passed. Some semblance of reason has returned. Bears are no longer viewed as possessing unlimited power. Stock prices, it is now conceded, may even prove capable of moving otherwise than steadily down, down, down.

This change of sentiment in the highest financial circles is mainly responsible for the mild exhibitions of optimism on the stock exchanges within the last month.

Herbert Fleishbacker, California financial Napoleon, arriving in New York this week, was immediately impressed by the disappearance of the acute nervousness which prevailed during his previous visit several months ago. Almost every other recent out-of-town visitor has also noted the change. The nation's financial metropolis has so much influence throughout the country that the spirit of hope over fear cannot fail to have far-reaching effect.

No fewer than 15 000 automobile dealers have been eliminated in the last 12 months. Only the fittest survive, "warning" says W. A. Hiess, youthful vice-president in charge of the Oakland Motor Car Company's sales, and formerly president of Motor Accepting Corporation, dealer management and dealer accounting subsidiary of General Motors, a "hardy, resourceful group, skilled in sound management and abolition of unnecessary expenses."

This latest automobile statement, when I asked him to specify exactly why he felt optimistic, replied thus:

"1. Although something like 1,000,000 fewer automobiles than normal were manufactured during 1930, gasoline consumption increased by 13,000,000 barrels. Thus, the motor public, wearing out its cars faster than they are replaced, is building up a backlog of deferred demand.

"2. Some seven million old and obsolete cars still in service have become more expensive to operate than to replace. Many owners have not yet become aware of this fact, but the arrival of good driving weather in the spring will prove to them the economy of buying a new automobile—and many of them will buy.

"3. Values beyond anything ever before offered will be found in 1931 automobiles.

"4. The automobile business and many others which had become sick during effortless prosperity have regained their initiative and stamina.

"5. Commodity prices are stronger. Employment is improving. Bonds, always the first securities to move upward after a dtpression, are stronger. Inventories are depleted.

"The United States, biggest and richest market of all times, remains very much one of the concerns—a nation of 123,000,000 people spending one hundred billions of dollars annually and saving at least $28,000,000,000. Nothing can stop a consuming machine of that immensity and power."

* * *

So firmly does Mr. Bless believe that the car sales work will produce results that he is taking his entire headquarters staff on a swing around the key cities of the United States to supervise personally the placing in effect of the ambitious 1931 sales program.

The country will not much longer stay on "dead center."

WHITNEY IS TO BE SPEAKER IN BOSTON

By FRANK R. MELOON

President Richard Whitney of the New York Stock Exchange, returning from Florida for his annual get-together of New York State bankers, by an odd coincidence, chose as the topic for his address a development discussed in this column earlier in the week. His subject was the big growth in public ownership of securities. Mr. Whitney will be the principal before the Boston Chamber of Commerce January 29. His topic in Boston will be "Trade Depressions and Stock Panics."

Richard Whitney

* * *

Just before the 1929 crash a leading financial magazine carried an article about financial panics. An able writer interrogated about a dozen of the country's outstanding business and financial leaders. All but one agreed that we could have no panics. Most of them pointed to the Federal Reserve System as having made panics impossible. An apparent fact that too much was expected of the Federal Reserve System.

* * *

Panics appear to be in a class with wars. Just as we were assured that another war was impossible, along came a conflict that was larger than any of its predecessors. And the 1929 panic certainly set an all-time-to-date record. Panic, as its name indicates, is the result of terror. Until the people reason correctly and panic will be averted. There are situations in which reason goes by the board. From one point of view, every rush to sell a sound stock because its value today for a time is a little panic in itself.

* * *

Commenting on the decreases in accidents at grade crossings, an economist stated that they undoubt in part due to the reduction in number of grade crossings. The latter decrease, 31 per cent, being reduced in number is common, and falsely based on the fact that hazards at crossings are eliminated. Massachusetts, for example, is engaged in bringing about a few eliminations at the present time.

* * *

The grade crossing situation as a whole instead of showing definite improvement is steadily growing worse. While it is true that the question of elimination and protection is being given consideration by a number of agencies and commendable efforts are being put forth, yet the measures taken appear to be wholly inadequate to meet the exigencies of the present situation.

* * *

During the past five years there has been an increase in the number of grade crossings, averaging approximately 650 per year; during the same period there has been an increase of nearly 7,000,000 in automobiles registered, each of which is used more and driven farther per year than was the case a few years ago; both local and long-distance touring have greatly increased. These facts combined have resulted in material increase in exposure to the risk of grade crossing accidents. It is interesting in some measure that accidents have not increased in proportion to the increase in highway traffic.

MILD SETBACK IS REGISTERED IN WALL ST.

New York, Jan. 24—The stock market ended a week of almost steadily advancing prices today with a mild setback.

A vigorous effort to extend the rally by bidding up the automobile shares was less successful than similar efforts have been in the past few issues of late, whatever may be the effects of motor competition in the field of transportation.

IRREGULARLY LOWER

The market reflected week-end profit-taking at the start, but in the middle of the session stiffened with a rise of 2 to 4 points in motor and accessory issues. The pullback toward easier prices at the close was in part only used to liquidate industrials and utilities, however, and the list closed irregularly lower, with much of the advance in the motors lost. Rails were quiet and steady.

It was notable that trading failed to show much vitality on the decline. Total sales for the two-hour session were only 1,126,790 shares. Continued interest was once again proved tone of the bond market was regarded as distinctly favorable.

Tobaccos were selling targets in the final transactions. It appeared that bears selected these issues for an attack, on the basis of retail cigarette price-cutting, although manufacturers prices have not been changed, and their profits may be increased by the stimulation of consumption.

American Tobacco "B" dropped 6 points, and closed off 4, net. Liggett & Myers issues lost 2 and 3 points. Allied Chemical was again a wide mover, dropping 7 points, and closing near the bottom.

MOTORS ARE HIGHER

Westinghouse Electric, Air Reduction and Consolidated Gas lost about 2 points, and issues closing off a point or so included American Water Works, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, American Smelting, Electric Power & Light, Standard of N. J., Bethlehem Steel, Union Carbide and Johns Manville. Odd fractional losses were shown by U. S. Steel, Radio, American Can and North American.

In the motors, Auburn was a volatile performer. It sank 2 points, rallied to show a gain of more than 4, then lost half its advance. Such issues as Nash, Studebaker, Chrysler and Hudson showed temporary gains of a point or more, but were up only a little at the close. General Motors was fairly active, but made little progress.

The advance in the motor group appeared to be a professional move, based on reports of moderately satisfactory sales, and expectation of improvement with the approach of spring. Reports from Detroit indicate, however, that the seasonal improvement has been partially checked.

Operations in the Youngstown area, which serves much of the motor industry, next week is scheduled for about 49 per cent of capacity, a gain of about a point from six weeks ago, it was reported.

Wall Street placed favorable long-term interpretation on the report Brunswick, Ga., that George F. Baker, expressed the belief that it was unwise to go ahead of the market at this time, permitting himself two statements to the press in a week, despite his long standing rule of silence.

Motor Shares Meet Support on Curb

Profit-taking in the utilities dominated the trend in that group and most of the leaders closed nominally lower. Selling in the first hour had little. Effect and prices recovered, but pressure was applied more persistently in the late trading.

Electric Bond & Share lost a point net and there were fractional recessions in United Gas, United Light "A", American Superpower and others.

Ford of England reached a new high for the rally, although the net gain was small. Industrials as a group did well, and specialties and specialties also firmed. Deere, Newmont Mining and Mead Johnson were up 1 to 3.

Oils were inactive, but inclined lower. Standard of Indiana and Cities Service sagged.

Youngstown Steel Merger Appeal Voted

Youngstown, O., Jan. 24 (AP)—Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company officials announced at a directors' meeting today that they would appeal the recent court decision enjoining the company's proposed merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Announcement of the decision was made by Walter Meub, secretary-treasurer of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, who emerged from the meeting long enough to say:

"We're going to appeal. That's all we are telling out."

Meub at once returned to the meeting, without answering reporters' questions.

$1.07 a Share Is Earned by Erie R. R.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Preliminary figures for the Erie Railroad show for 1930 net income of $4,171,149 before sinking fund appropriations, equal to $1.07 a share on the common, against $11,677,709, or $6.05 a share, in 1929.

December Rail Net Declines 41.3 P. C.

First eight railroads to report December earnings had a net operating income of $4,468,000, as compared with $7,626,000 in December, 1929, a decrease of 41.3 per cent, and $8,228,000 in December, 1928, a decline of 49.3 per cent.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By Anthony Abbot

pared to your happiness? I think I am letting you off very easily. Particularly as I do not approve of your romance and consider he scarcely by your breed. I will never show the white feather. You tell me it is right. Something tells me it is very wrong. Very wicked. Once in your sleep I heard you utter her name. I am getting married and I need the money. I must have four thousand dollars from you or I will tell about the house on Peddler's road. Thank God I have—"

There, Betty told us, the note abruptly finished.

Instantly saying goodbye to her, with a promise that he would send for her later, Colt turned from the regulation to the ister-office telephone. To another division of that immense department which he loved to call the "Standing Army of the City of New York," he put a question:

"Hello—Brampton? Is there such a place in the five boroughs anywhere as Peddler's road? What? All right, I'll hold on."

He turned and looked somberly at me.

"That note sounds bad," he said. "Who was Casanova?"

Then he spoke again into the phone and listened to the crisp voice, giving directions from the other end.

"Thanks," said Thatcher Colt finally, and turned to me as he replaced the receiver.

Peddler's Road

I knew what my chief would do. He would telephone to the Precinct Captain in the neighborhood, wherever Peddler's Road might lie and give his instructions. The Precinct Captain would "turn on the light." The patrolman on the beat, within 10 or 15 minutes, would be near the patrol-box and observe the signal light flashing. He would telephone to the station-house and be told to find out what he could about the houses on Peddler's Road.

"Chief," I said, "I wish you would let me do that job. I'm not on my work here."

Thatcher Colt smiled.

"All right," he said. "Peddler's Road is on Manhattan Island, although I confess I have never heard of it before. Brampton tells me it is a small lane, running across some undeveloped property behind Riverside Drive near the Dyckman Street ferry up on the hill there, near the Rockefeller property. I don't know that there is much chance of finding anything important, but you could hop up there right off and take a look around. Mind? This note says the 'house on Peddler's Road' and Brampton says it is just a block in length, so you won't have far to look. Report right back here—Captain Laird and I are having lunch to talk over the case."

I was already in my overcoat and on my way.

But here I must confess to an act of mine which may have seemed like carelessness. There was no intention of disloyalty on my part whatever, but it does seem to me then that an hour's time would make an important difference. The fact was that in the morning I had telephoned Betty Canfield at the Espinade Apartments and invited her to lunch with me to discuss the disappearance of her friend. I did not think it necessary to break the engagement in order to carry out instructions—an hour or so either way would make no difference.

Accordingly I met Betty at a Portuguese restaurant on Broad st. and I found her a very entertaining luncheon companion. Of course we talked about the fragments of the note she had found, but at first I tried to avoid a discussion of the case. Instead, I got her to tell me all about herself, and listened with growing interest as she related incidents of her childhood down in their Western Maryland home. Her family still lived in Wingsboro, a little mountain town, where she had been neighbors of the Fosters. Betty and Geraldine had come to New York about the same time. Geraldine was studying night courses in accountancy while Betty was learning interior decoration in which she was now highly successful, having a good position with a firm on Madison ave. At no time did Betty refer to her engagement to Bruce Foster, the brother of the missing girl, and I did not have the effrontery to ask her about it, much as I wished to know if it still continued. Presently she asked me to tell her about my work, which I did, quite willingly and we lingered over the table while I talked authoritatively of the police department and my devotion to Thatcher Colt.

Served in War

"I think you are a good detective yourself," smiled Betty. "But I suppose that comes from your newspaper training."

She laughed.

"I know more than that," she said. "You were in the war and served with your old friend, the Commissioner, and you were never afraid of anybody but him, and the only thing you want in the world is another war, and I hope you never get it, and you're proud of your drinking capacity, aren't you?"

I stared across at her in amazement.

"You must be a detective yourself," I stammered. "Who told you all that about me?"

But she only laughed and said she always liked to know something in advance about people with whom she had lunch. I saw then that she had talked with Thatcher Colt when I was not present.

Then Betty begged me to tell her more about what Thatcher Colt was doing to find her roommate. So interested was she in the search that I then and there confided to her my assignment, whereupon she pleaded to let her accompany me uptown.

In this request, I saw no real harm. Betty's interest in the case was so keen, and her knowledge of Geraldine Foster so valuable that I was glad to have her. It was about half-past two o'clock when I telephoned for a department car and we started our long drive from the lower part of the Island into Upper Manhattan near the frontier line of the Harlem River.

At Dyckman Street we left the car and after some search climbed a narrow path that started from Broadway and toiled up a steep slope into a region strangely at variance with the built-up streets that hemmed it all around. Like an oasis of forgotten country, this stretch of land hid itself in the midst of a region filled with apartment houses, stores and garages, with the ferry slip and the river only a few thousand feet away. Old trees were growing there, and a few quaint and abandoned frame houses, now falling to pieces.

I remember that as we trudged forward up the hill, a small sallow-faced boy passed up and I called to him, "Where is Peddler's Road?"

He opened his mouth, showing his buck teeth, and said:

Naked Ghost

"Up there by the haunted house where you can see the naked ghost."

"What's that? Come here!"

I cried, but the boy ran down the steep slope, and was almost instantly lost to sight. Betty and I looked at each other and then laughed, the encounter then seemed odd and yet absurd, and our own best solution somewhat ridiculous. Was this lane which now had led us to the heights of this promontory the Peddler's Road that we had come here to seek? There seemed no way of telling. In this disarray of bare trees, frozen sod and rutted by-path, set down in the midst of a great city—this mountain wilderness where there were no street signs, guide posts, nor the sight of any living human being of whom we might inquire.

"I think this must be the place," said Betty, pointing to a turn into a wider sort of road, but in no better condition, a few feet beyond. There were a few large old trees, whose bare boughs creaked and cried in the wind of that bleak afternoon, and skirting these we came suddenly upon a lonely house—the only dwelling on what we learned later was really Peddler's Road.

HERE AND THERE AMONG THE CHURCHES

DR. BROUGHER RETURNS

Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Tremont Temple Baptist Church, will be back in his own pulpit tomorrow, returning from a trip to California. In the morning at the 10:30 o'clock service, he will take for his sermon topic, "Successful Men and How They Do It." In the evening at 7 o'clock Dr. Brougher will preach on "How to Choose the Right Wife—Do Blondes or Brunettes Beautiful or Homely Women Make the Best Wives?" This is the first of a series of ten popular Sunday evening sermons on "Home, Sweet Home," on "How to Be Happy Though Married."

OLD SOUTH DEBATE

"Should Public Utilities Be Publicly Owned?" is to be the subject of a debate at the Old South Meeting House Forum, Sunday afternoon, between Norman Thomas of New York and Prof. Arthur Stone Dewing of Harvard University.

Dr. Dewing, who, since 1927 has been professor of finance at Harvard University, having previously been a teacher both of philosophy and of economics, is particularly qualified to oppose the Socialist position regarding public utilities in that, among other things, he holds active membership on the boards of directors of a number of gas and electric light companies. Also he served as special counsel for the Corn Products Refining Company before the United States Supreme Court in the appeal from the decree of dissolution under the Sherman Act.

Mr. Thomas

UNITY CHURCH

Doctor Frederick A. Wiggin, pastor of Unity Church, 296 Huntington ave., will speak tomorrow evening at 7:30 upon the subject, "Politicians and the Unemployed." This discourse is announced as one of vital importance.

FR CORRIGAN

"The Church and Public Corruption" is the topic to be dealt with this afternoon by Fr. Jones I. Corrigan in his lecture course at Emmanuel College in the Fenway. This is the third in a series that began Jan. 10. A musical program will be given by Mrs. Zola Doane Sanders.

The Rev. John B. Creeden, S. J., dean of Boston College graduate school, has announced the following scholarships for the spring semester 1931:

Alfred E. Burke, director of art for the city of Cambridge, to conduct a course in the history and appreciation of painting and sculpture.

D. Leo Daley, former coach and professor of history at Boston College technical high school.

Robert E. Masterson, head master of Roxbury Memorial high school, who will lecture on "High School Administration."

John P. Sullivan, supervisor of health education of the school of hygiene, for a course in "Health Education," designed for teachers and school nurses who have teaching responsibilities.

Devotions in honor of St. Theresa are held every Thursday at St. Francis Xavier church, shrine of the "Little Flower," in Boston. The preacher on January 29th will be the Rev. Edward M. Hines, of the Immaculate Conception Church, Everett.

Hours of services are: 12:30 noonday Mass; 3:30, 5:20, 7:45 p.m. Fr. Hartigan will preach at the 5:20 and 7:45 p. m. devotions.

CATHOLIC RADIO PERIOD

Broadcast from Station WNAC from 1 to 2 p. m.

Program for Sunday, January 25:

Speaker, Rev. Vincent Conners, C. P., of St. Gabriel's Monastery, Brighton. Subject, "The First Commandment."

Question Box—Rev. Joseph E. McManus, S. J., professor of philosophy, Weston College.

Denis A. McCarthy, LL. D., poet and lecturer, is to speak for the first time under the auspices of the Daily Industrial School Guild on Sunday evening, Jan. 25, at 8:15 o'clock in the school hall, 111 Train st., Dorchester. The subject of Dr. McCarthy's address, "Rhymes and Remembrances," will include readings from many of his own verses.

The concert and lecture are in aid of the Daily Industrial school.

St. Joseph's Guild for the Aged will be the monthly meeting at the home, 321 Center st., Dorchester, Sunday, Jan. 25, at 3 p. m.

The guest speaker will be Walter V. McCarthy, secretary of the public welfare. Mrs. C. Leo Christian will, as usual, have charge of the musical program.

On Wednesday evening, January 28, a bridge party will be held at the chalet of the Philomathela Club, Crescent Hill, for the missions in charge of the Very Rev. James T. G. Hayes, S. J., of Manila. P. I. Father Hayes was recently appointed Superior of the Jesuit missionaries in the Philippine Islands.

DR. A. Z. CONRAD

"What will be the effect of the Wickersham Report? Such is the prelude question to be dealt with by Dr. A. Z. Conrad tomorrow evening preceding his sermon on "Christian Business for Adventurous Spirits." In the morning he preaches on "When God Becomes Obvious, Believable, Adorable." The poet Nancy B. Turner will speak to the women's club next Wednesday on "A poet looks at her own verse."

LENTEN MEETINGS

Through the courtesy of the management, the Greater Boston Federation of Churches will again hold their noonday services this coming Lent, beginning Feb. 18 at the Tremont Theatre. The program has been filled with an exceptionally fine list of speakers.

CHURCH OF THE ADVENT

The Rt. Rev. B. Brent, Bishop of Vermont, will be the special preacher at the annual Festival of the Guild of St. Vincent in the Church of the Advent tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Visiting acolytes from other Boston parishes, as well as from parishes in the neighboring diocese of New England and New York, will be the guests of the Advent Guild, and will take part in the service.

Bishop Rhodes will also preach at the solemn high mass at 10:30 o'clock.

On Monday evening, the Rev. Julian D. Hamlin, rector of the Advent, will address the Guild of St. Francis Xavier on "Anglo-Catholicism and Sociology."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Truth" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Jan. 25.

The Golden Text is: "O Lord, Thou art my God; I will exalt Thee, I will praise Thy name: for Thou hast done wonderful things; Thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth" (Isaiah 25:1).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works" (II Timothy 3:16, 17).

CHURCHES

A Tide That Is Rising

There is a hope that is rising like tides in the spring.
It wells in the souls of the bulk of strong men,
And crosses the ocean on radio's wing.
It soars in a plane over boundary lines,
And knows less of nations, but more of mankind.
This hope is, that people the whole world around
Will find they are neighbors though blue seas divide.
And neighbors are brothers, if prophets speak true.

Judge to Speak

Her Honor, Judge Emma Fall Schofield, will be one of the special guests of the Episcopalian Club, and will address the annual meeting at the Copley-Plaza.

Annual Election of Episcopalian Club

A 43d annual meeting of the Episcopalian Club of Massachusetts will be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel next Tuesday evening when there will be three outstanding speakers—Bishop Sherrill, No Yong Park and Judge Emma Fall Schofield, special justice of the first district court of eastern Middlesex. She is one of the first women to be given a judgeship. Officers of the club are to be elected, and a nominating committee has arranged the following slate:

President, Edward Hutchins Trinity Church, Boston; vice-presidents, Henry R. Brigham, Christ Church, Cambridge; George Hodges, St. Paul's Church, Brookline; secretary, Richard C. Evarts, Christ Church, Cambridge; treasurer, F. Nathaniel Perkins, Trinity Church, Boston.

DUDLEY ST. BAPTIST

At the Dudley Street Baptist Church, Roxbury, tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, pastor Arthur W. Brooks, will start the second decade as pastor of the church. He will preach upon the subject: "Starting the Second Decade." Special musical selections will be rendered by the Concorde Male Quartet.

TEMPLE ISRAEL

Rabbi Ehrry Levi has chosen to speak on "What Happened in Philadelphia" at Temple Israel tomorrow morning. At 10 a. m. there is to be a discussion on immigration. "Building Jewish Character" is Rabbi Cohon's sermon this morning. Temple Israel that has been paying at the rate of $75 a month for radio privileges, has now been informed by WNAC that further charges will not be made.

PORT OF BOSTON NEWS

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Recommendation of the new Boston to the West Indies service was made by Gordon E. Barrett of Arlington, first United States citizen to complete a round trip on the Lady Drake of the Canadian National Steamships Co., which opened a regular run from this port, in which he stated that the service should be encouraged, as she docked at Commonwealth Pier.

The Lady Drake opened the service Christmas Day. She visited 12 West Indies ports with passengers and cargo. She visited islands in the east of the West Indies group.

All passengers described the trip as smooth and marked by pleasant weather. Accommodations and service were described as excellent.

Passengers disembarking at Boston were Eustace Akins, eight-year-old boy of New York city, accompanied by Mrs. Eleanor King; L. S. Chambers of Buffalo, N. Y.; Frank B. Flannery of Chicago; W. G. Gill, Thomas O'Connell, Montreal skiers; Mrs. Edgerton Gilbert and daughter, Mrs. O'Connell; Harry O'Hare of Beverly; Harry Fallon of Quincy; Mrs. Jessie Montreal banker, and Mrs. Ridout; John Boomer of Montreal; Miss Mildred Broughton of Wollaston and William B. Williams of Hartford, Conn.

DOCTOR'S AIDE

The appointment of John S. Granfield as chief pharmacist's mate of the United States Coast Guard has been announced. He comes from Base 2, Staten Island, N. Y., to the Boston recruiting headquarters as the Custom House. Granfield succeeds Dixie J. Cannon, who was here a number of years, but was recently transferred. His duties here will be to assist the physician who examines applicants for Coast Guard enlistment.

THIRD GENERATION

Early in the 80s when Capt. John Matson started his shipping trade from the Golden Gate to Diamond Head, the fine ship Lurline was the forerunner of his fleet was the brig which he built and named Lurline. When his latest ship was flown over his first passenger and freight steamer in honor of his two-masted schooner, he also named her the Lurline. Today it became known that his latest ship, to cost $5,000 and accommodate 600 passengers, order for which has been placed with the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp. for construction at the Fore River plant, will be named the Lurline to perpetuate the history of the service from San Francisco to Australia. The Matson Navigation Co. announced that the new liner will be ready in 1933. She is a sister ship of the Mariposa and Monterey, now almost ready at Fore River, and like them will be 632 feet long.

STUDIED HUB TRADE

Intimation that a Chilean consulate would be established at this port and that a steamship line may be established between Boston ports and the port of Boston was made by Salvador Dinamarca, consul for Chile at Boston, upon making a study of the trade between Boston and Chile. Shipments from this country to Chile are routed through New York at the present time.

SUNK AND BROKEN

After the 40-year-old steamer Massasoit was sunk at the official location record about six miles east of the Boston Lightship, a two-ton boulder was dropped on the vessel from a higher level, but shattered the timbers. She filled in a short time and in two hours sunk beneath the surface in 150 feet of water. A few broken pieces of her hull was all that came to the surface to mark her watery grave.

CITY OF BOSTON
TRANSIT DEPARTMENT
PROPOSALS FOR PUBLIC ADDITION
A. TRAFFIC TUNNEL, BOSTON TO CHELSEA

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 15 Beacon Street, generally, invites proposals from citizens of the United States of responsible character and legal associations wherein the controlling interest is held by citizens of the United States for the extent of at least one-half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States legally qualified to become Alien Property Custodian. The work consists of the construction of a pair of reinforced concrete tunnel, a part of which is under water, together with approaches, shafts and ventilation shafts. The method of construction will be generally by tunneling by the shield method, using compressed air where necessary, and the work will be prosecuted surety company will be required to guarantee the performance of the contract in a sum of 65 per cent of the total bid. Bidders must agree to pay the prevailing wage for the locality. The bid shall be sealed envelope. Indorsed "Proposal for Traffic Tunnel, Boston to Chelsea," and delivered to the department, or to its secretary, on or before 12 o'clock noon on Thursday, February 25, 1931, at which time they will be opened and publicly announced and read. A properly certified check in the sum of $100,000 for preliminary work ($50,000) follows, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. The check shall become the property of the city if the bidder to whom the contract is awarded fails within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the department of the acceptance of the proposal and the bidder's execution of a contract for same. Proposals must be made in duplicate. The right is reserved to reject any or all bids. Plans may be obtained by the bidder with the City Auditing Department, City Hall, proving by a deposit of $25 in cash or by certified check, which will be refunded in full if plans and two sets of the specifications. Modifications of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposit. The Department reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.
